1975 TREASURE CHEST

Madison Heights High School

Anderson, Indiana 46013

Volume XVIII

We began the year discovering new things to do. The advent of record rooms and the arrival of a new teacher told us we had a lot of adjusting to do. We compensated for the 68° thermostat setting by wearing warmer clothes, but we soon found that the MH spirit made warm clothes stifling at basketball games. Senior mascot Paul Moran doubled as a somersaulting cheerleader! Indeed, during 1974-75 we replaced the lice with an epidemic of breaks and sprains as MH'ers hobbled through the halls on crutches. We were on the Threshold of Doing . . .

Trying to outlast the burning rays of the sun, a lone icicle slowly melts away.

Enthused by the spirit of the fans, cheerleaders boost teams' morales at a Pep Session.

Adding to the colorful routine, flag carriers and majorettes march proudly at State Fair.

Considering a Hawaiian theme for the annual prom, JEC discusses possibilities of decor.

Coaches Sutton, Good, and Buck watch intently from the bench as MH dribbles down court.

Super kabonger Maleah Stringer jabs a zinging return to the opponent in "cross-net" play.

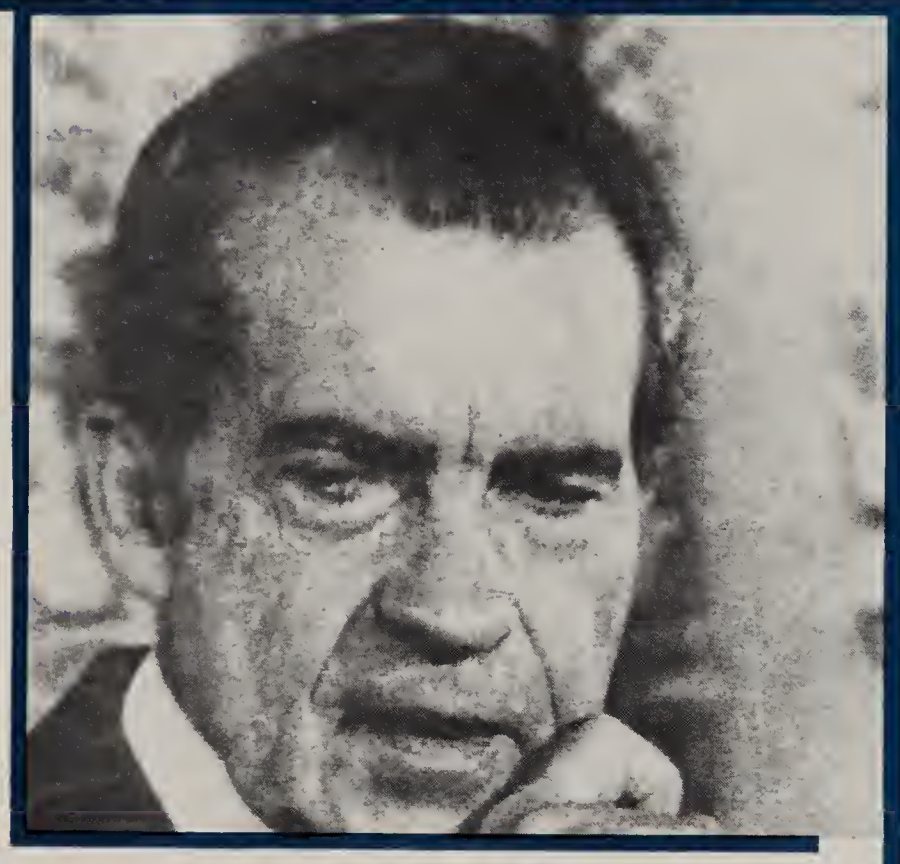
Psyching up Pirate fans, mascot Paul Moran raises his fist defiantly to rival Anderson.



With a sob, Richard Nixon says a sad farewell to the nation as he resigns on August 9.

The past year saw the end of many controversial issues and the beginning of several others. The Nixon regime ended with Watergate, and Gerald Ford took the Presidential Oath as Richard M. Nixon became the first U.S. president to resign his office. The U.S. reached a stalemate in the Mid-East with the end of the Arab oil embargo, and we as MH'ers, tried to reach out and understand all that was happening. We applauded as German-born Henry Kissinger traveled world wide for peace. We wanted to touch our world. We were on the Threshold of Reaching . . .

MH members of the first 18-year old jury listen intently to testimonies of witnesses.

During 1974-75 we began to emerge from our shells to look at our changing world. We solemnly observed the passing away of School Board member Maurice "Red" Robinson. We became involved in politics; some of us voted in the election which returned Birch Bayh to the Senate, and twelve MH'ers made history as they became the first Madison County all-teen jury. We took on adult responsibility as we supported BAC- Buy a Car- to help out our city's auto manufacturers. We were fast joining the adult world. We were on the Threshold of Emerging . . .

THRESHOLD OF HAPPENING

"On your marks! Get set! Go!" The race through 1974-75 began for MH'ers with the words of an invisible starter. Bells rang, gates flew open, and Pirates made things happen as they stepped over the MH threshold. Winning seasons brightened our athletes' eyes, and super Pirate Pride radiated from our students. According to tradition, we crowned queens to reign over TC, Homecoming, and Prom. "Spirit" was our key word—"action" was our motto. As we participated in convos and pep sessions, we eagerly stood on the Threshold of Happening . . .

Gals' Track Starts Out With Great

According to Coach Mrs. Maxine Barcus, "There has never been a high school that has won so many ribbons and attained such a record in its first year as did the Madison Heights Girls Track Team!" Three varsity letter winners competed in the sectional- Michele Guion in shotput, Cindy Poer in the softball throw, and Cathy Mathis in the 220-yard dash. Cathy won fourth place at the sectional out of 21 girls. The girls had only two defeats, handed to them by Connersville and Yorktown. Combining two losses with six wins and the city championship, the gals piled up an impressive first season.

With the ability required for victory, Shirley Harrison and Janie James pass the baton.

Exemplifying sectional form, Michelle Guion puts the shot in an attempt for extra yardage.

Rounding the third turn, Tom Jewell races down the home stretch for another victory.

Seemingly flying, Russell Cousins leaps over a hurdle in the turn at Pendleton Heights.

After completing a vault, Vance Gullckson "floats" down as Don Bell catches the pole.

Stretching to break the "string", Elmer Martin finishes first at a Pirate home track meet.

What do the names Steve Mills, Elmer Martin, Joe Buck, and Elroy Robinson have in common? They were the four members of the mile-relay team that broke the MH school record. The team also went undefeated during the regular track season. Jeff Ault competed in the pole vault event and vaulted an even thirteen feet, just three inches below the school record. Robinson was also undefeated in the 100 and 200-yard dashes.

Madison Heights finished first in the New Castle Invitational with fine finishes by Bob Ferguson in the high hurdles along with Robinson and Mills who took first and second place in the 440-yard dash.

Girls' Tennis Compiles 5-1 Slate

Practicing after school and on Saturdays, the racketeers shaped up a solid team. The girls started out on the right foot by edging a very strong New Castle team 4-3. This was the first defeat for New Castle in 31 matches over a four-year period.

Muncie Central and Kokomo Haworth then fell prey to the racketeers by the scores of 7-0, 7-0. Traveling to Muncie Northside, the team found themselves losing against the powerful Titans 6-1. Melody Hollingsworth was the only victor for Madison Heights. The racketeers finished the year by beating both Muncie South and Anderson by the score of 6-1. Melody Hollingsworth finished the year undefeated with a 6-0 Julie Skiles a 4-1.

For the first time in school history, the Prom was held away from school. Approximately 150 couples danced from 8-12 at the Anderson Senior Citizen Center to the music of Bull Angus. The evening's highlight was the crowning of Prom Queen Shawn Hite, escorted by junior Ron Scott. Shawn's court consisted of Marianne Kaminski and Susie Akers, escorted by Bart Epperly and Jeff Hightchew respectively. Junior class president Paul Moran crowned the queen. In keeping with the "Stairway to Heaven" theme, scenery included fluffy clouds, stairways, and a skyline.

King's Island Trip Tops Senior Week

King's Island hosted the graduating class of 1974 during senior week as 200 seniors and 15 chaperones took six buses to the Cincinnati playground. Highlighting the week were the traditional "dress-up" and "cap and gown" days. Over four hundred seniors, wearing maroon-colored gowns, graduated at Madison Heights' 18th commencement. Top scholastic awards went to Ralph Ewell, valedictorian, and Jill Greenberg, salutatorian. Speaking for the class were officers Tim Trueblood, Candy Carpenter, Debbie Nuce, and Nancy Harber. An address by Reverend Harold Clark preceded the presentation of diplomas by Superintendent G. E. Ebbertt.

After commencement practice, seniors stuff themselves with pizza while signing yearbooks.

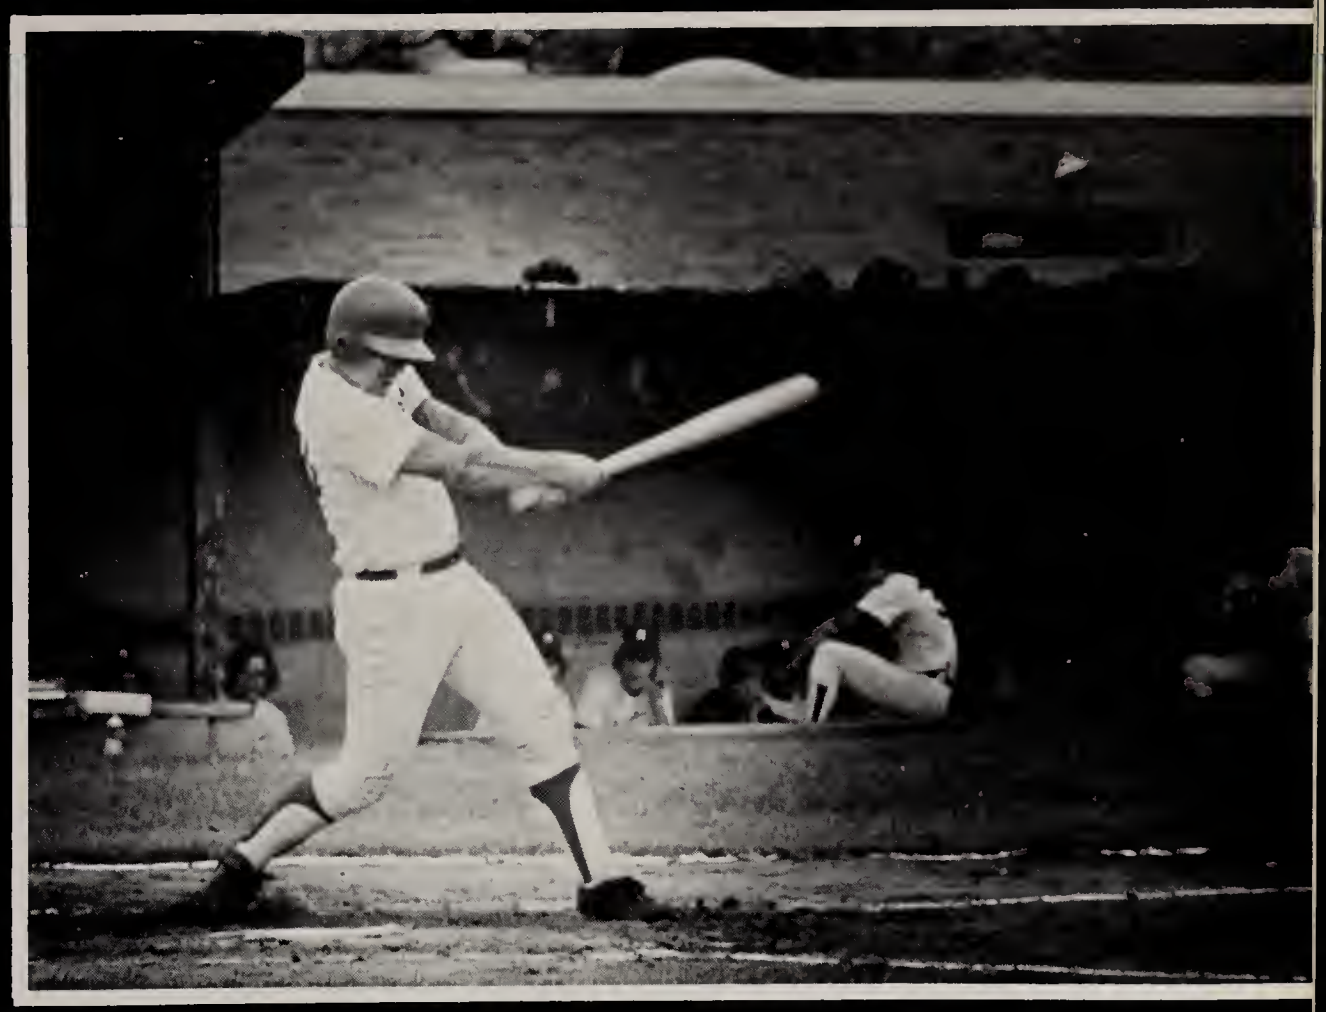
Individual Results Cop Honors

An up and down season was evident as the MH baseball team finished with a 10-15 record. The diamondmen started out by winning eight of their first ten games. But due to silent bats and inconsistent pitching, the Pirates lost thirteen of their next fifteen games. The Bucs put it all back together in their opening sectional game as they thumped Elwood, but were eliminated from the competition by archrival Anderson High School.

There were many fine individual performances on the team. Jay Brehm captured the "Highest Batting Average" award as he rapped out 26 hits for a .382 average. Terry Ward led the team in runs batted in and in home runs. Rick Cates and Tod Dickey led the pitching staff in victories while Steve Tweed had the lowest earned run average on the team. Jay Brehm and Al Lemond were named to the distinguished Olympic Conference team.



Using all his strength, Stan Sauerwein swings for another hit to aid the Pirate team.

Students Attend Workshops; MH'ers Tackle Odd Jobs

The summer of '74 was busy for MH students. Yearbook Editors Debbie Woods and Nancy Beehler and photographers Paul Moran and Ron Dageforde attended a journalism workshop at Ball State. They learned what constitutes a good yearbook and different concepts of photography.

Student Council officers Ron May, Tom Prichard, Curtis Steinmetz, and Alicia McCarroll attended a Student Council Workshop at Indiana University, where they learned the basic fundamentals of leadership.

Some MH students spent their summer with odd jobs. Junior Lisa Boblitt sold hotdogs at the Goodyear Tire Store, while Sophomore Jeff Smith babysat for neighbors. Junior Alice Lanz participated in the Fine Arts Festival selling toys.

Led by senior Jeff Ault, the '74 Pirate tennis team finished with an 8-8 record. Ault had a great year as he swept by all but three opponents towards a 13-3 personal record in singles. Senior Gary Ruth was the second man on the team. He had a very respectable 9-5 season. Seniors Ron Scott, John Weatherford, and sophomore Galen Scott rounded out the squad.

The netmen finished fifth as a team in the Olympic Conference meet, while Ault placed second in singles competition in the meet. The racketmen ended the year by going all the way to the semi-final round of the sectional before falling to Anderson High School. At the awards convo, Jeff Ault won the Most Points Trophy and the Ben Howe Award, which stood for the most contributions to the team. John Weatherford won the Good Sportsmanship Award.

Pirettes Compete On Links

Under the coaching of Mrs. Willie Roller, the first girls golf team in MH history—juniors Linda Boone, Pam Granger, and Julie Skiles, and sophomores Mary Beth Ainsworth and Thelma Whiteman—took to the links. The linkettes won their first match with Muncie Northside on their home course, Grandview, and went on to win five consecutive matches before being defeated by Marion and Yorktown. Anderson also proved to be an upset. The linkettes ended match play with a first year record of 6-3.

The Pirate season ended as they finished fifth in the sectional held at Yorktown. Girls golf was sponsored by IHSAA and varsity letters were given.

Gridmen Stack Up

Keeping MH's thirteenth winning season in a row alive, the gridmen finished 5-5. According to Head Coach Tom Bruin, these young men were a hard-working group. The main thing that hurt the team was its inability to put together a tough defense, which is a Pirate tradition.

Hosting the Jamboree and playing well in it was one of the many highlights this year. Another was coming from behind against Pendleton Heights before a large Homecoming crowd at Pendleton. MH finished the season by romping all over Kokomo Haworth. But, the big highlight was when the gridmen put it to Anderson 14-6.

There were also some fine individual performances on the team. Claude Parrett, Steve Tweed, Steve Mills, and Kevin Goen made the All Olympic Conference Team. The All-County team was led by eight Pirates. They were Tom Niccum, Kevin Goen, Steve Mills, Steve Tweed, Claude Parrett, Don Price, Bob Muller, and Joe Buck.

Tradition came back to Madison Heights in the form of an actual alumni-participation Homecoming. Post-grads from various years rode on many of the floats. All of the organizations that submitted floats were allowed to nominate a queen candidate. The 1974-75 Homecoming Queen was Lynne Tweed, the junior class candidate. The queen's court consisted of senior Cindy Rebenack, and junior Brenda Brundage. The winner of the float Contest was Pep Club. The annual Homecoming Dance was enhanced by the presence of the great MMM. The highlight of the dance, however, was the dance contest in which senior Monte McCune and sophomore Cathy Burton won the $15 first prize. The old, new-fangled Homecoming was sponsored by Student Council.

Harriers Rated 5th in State; Jewell Breaks MH Record

Led by senior harrier Tom Jewell, the Buc cross country team finished the season with a nine win and one loss record, tying the best prior team record. The Bucs were second in the Olympic Conference, finishing fourth against twenty-three teams in the Southport invitational. Bob Jackson had the fastest time ever for a junior and Tom Jones had the fastest time ever for a sophomore at MH. In the sectional, the Pirate team captured first place with Jewell taking top honors. Jewell finished third in the regional to pace the MH harriers to a sixth place finish against sixteen teams. Jewell qualified for the state and wound up thirteenth, capping a brilliant career for the MH harrier. Jewell holds the school record along with being the sectional champ. He was also a candidate for the State Mental Attitude Award.

Girls Win 2nd Sectional

The spikettes worked well together to make a very outstanding and congenial team. The swingers started their third season with two quick victories over Lapel and Muncie Central, but later fell to powerful Yorktown and Anderson. They then went on to win four out of their next five matches. The spikettes captured the sectional crown at Lapel by defeating Pendleton, Anderson, and Yorktown. They then traveled to New Castle, where they won the first game of the regional with a victory over Blue River. Muncie North proved fatal in the second game as they defeated the pirettes and went on to win the regional.

On February 21, 1975, the curtain at the Anderson City Building Auditorium rose on the opening of the Madison Heights Choral Department's production of "Once Upon A Mattress." Two sell-out performances climaxed months of work and planning done by a thirty-eight-member cast and a twenty-three-member production staff under the guidance of Choral Director Stan Ray. Cast in the leading roles of Princess Winifred and Prince Dauntless were juniors Christy House and Dave Hart. The colorful period costumes which were rented from New York added authenticity to the musical. The play is a funny tale about a princess who can't sleep because of a pea in her bed of twenty mattresses.

Moran Sweeps Sectional

Closing out the year with two wins just about summed up the season for the boys' gymnastics team. With only two senior competitors this year, Mike Chapin and Paul Moran, the gymnasts jumped, rolled, swung, and fell to a five-win and seven-loss record. The real highlight of the year came when Moran broke the school record for the most points in one meet—42.32 points against arch-rival Anderson. Moran also broke the school record for the most points registered in dual meets—403.87. The gymnasts finished fifth in the sectional as Moran was the only MH'er to qualify for the state. Soph Lysle Saubert was runner-up to Moran in scoring as freshman John Hagerman also added points for the gymnasts in the sectional. Saubert had eighth and tenth-place finishes while Hagerman received a ninth.

Hughes Voted Valuable

A lot of changes were made on the gymnastics team this year. Two new coaches, Miss Donna Thorsen and Mrs. Linda Price took on a big responsibility and went a long way. The scoring system was changed to incorporate three teams: beginning, intermediate and optional. The beginning team had a very exceptional year. Much credit is to be given to the sophomores, who seemed to be the most improved. Consistent winners were seniors Maleah Stringer and Lori Schorr and junior Lynda Hughes. Six of the twelve sectional competitors placed, three of whom qualified for the regional. Stringer captured first in both vaulting and floor exercise, and Hughes won first and Julie Skiles won second in vaulting. Lynda Hughes was voted Outstanding Gymnast by the sectional team.

Performing the beginning beam routine, senior Denise McClarnon prepares for her turn.

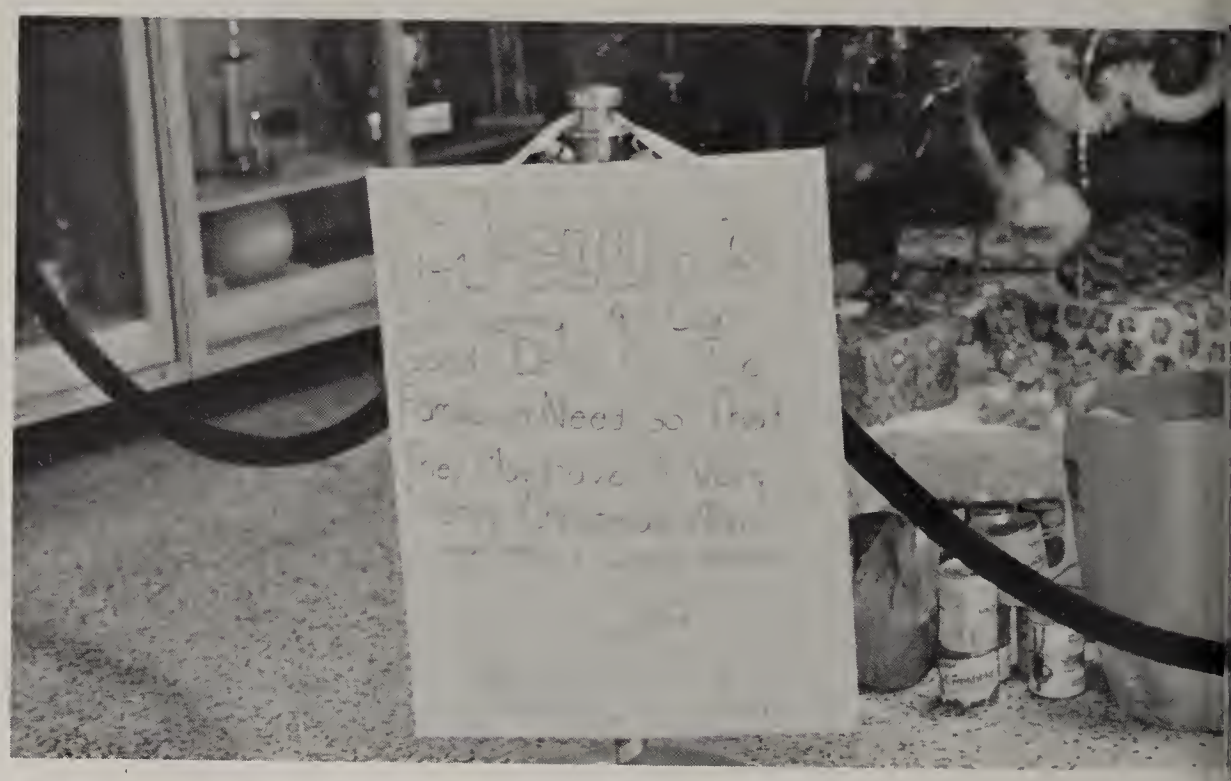
Saint Nick Visits MH



In order to help the needy people, M-Club conducts a food drive throughout the Yuletide.

"Jingle Bells, Jingle Bells"—many a student was heard humming this familiar tune as the Christmas spirit invaded the halls of MH. Teachers smiled; the whole school seemed happy as the magic day approached. Visions of Christmas vacation, not sugar plums, danced in students' heads. Some students took off for Florida, while others were content with Indiana. Decorated doors, wreaths, and even a little mistletoe began appearing as preparations were made for the visit of Old Saint Nick. A Christmas Convo was held with organizations providing entertainment. Christmas trees, placed in the lobbies, sparked the spirit of passers-by. Various Christmas cards were exchanged, some religious, some humerous, some traditional. Candy canes found their way into lockers. Christmas was a peaceful time of year; a time of reflections of the past and resolutions for the future.

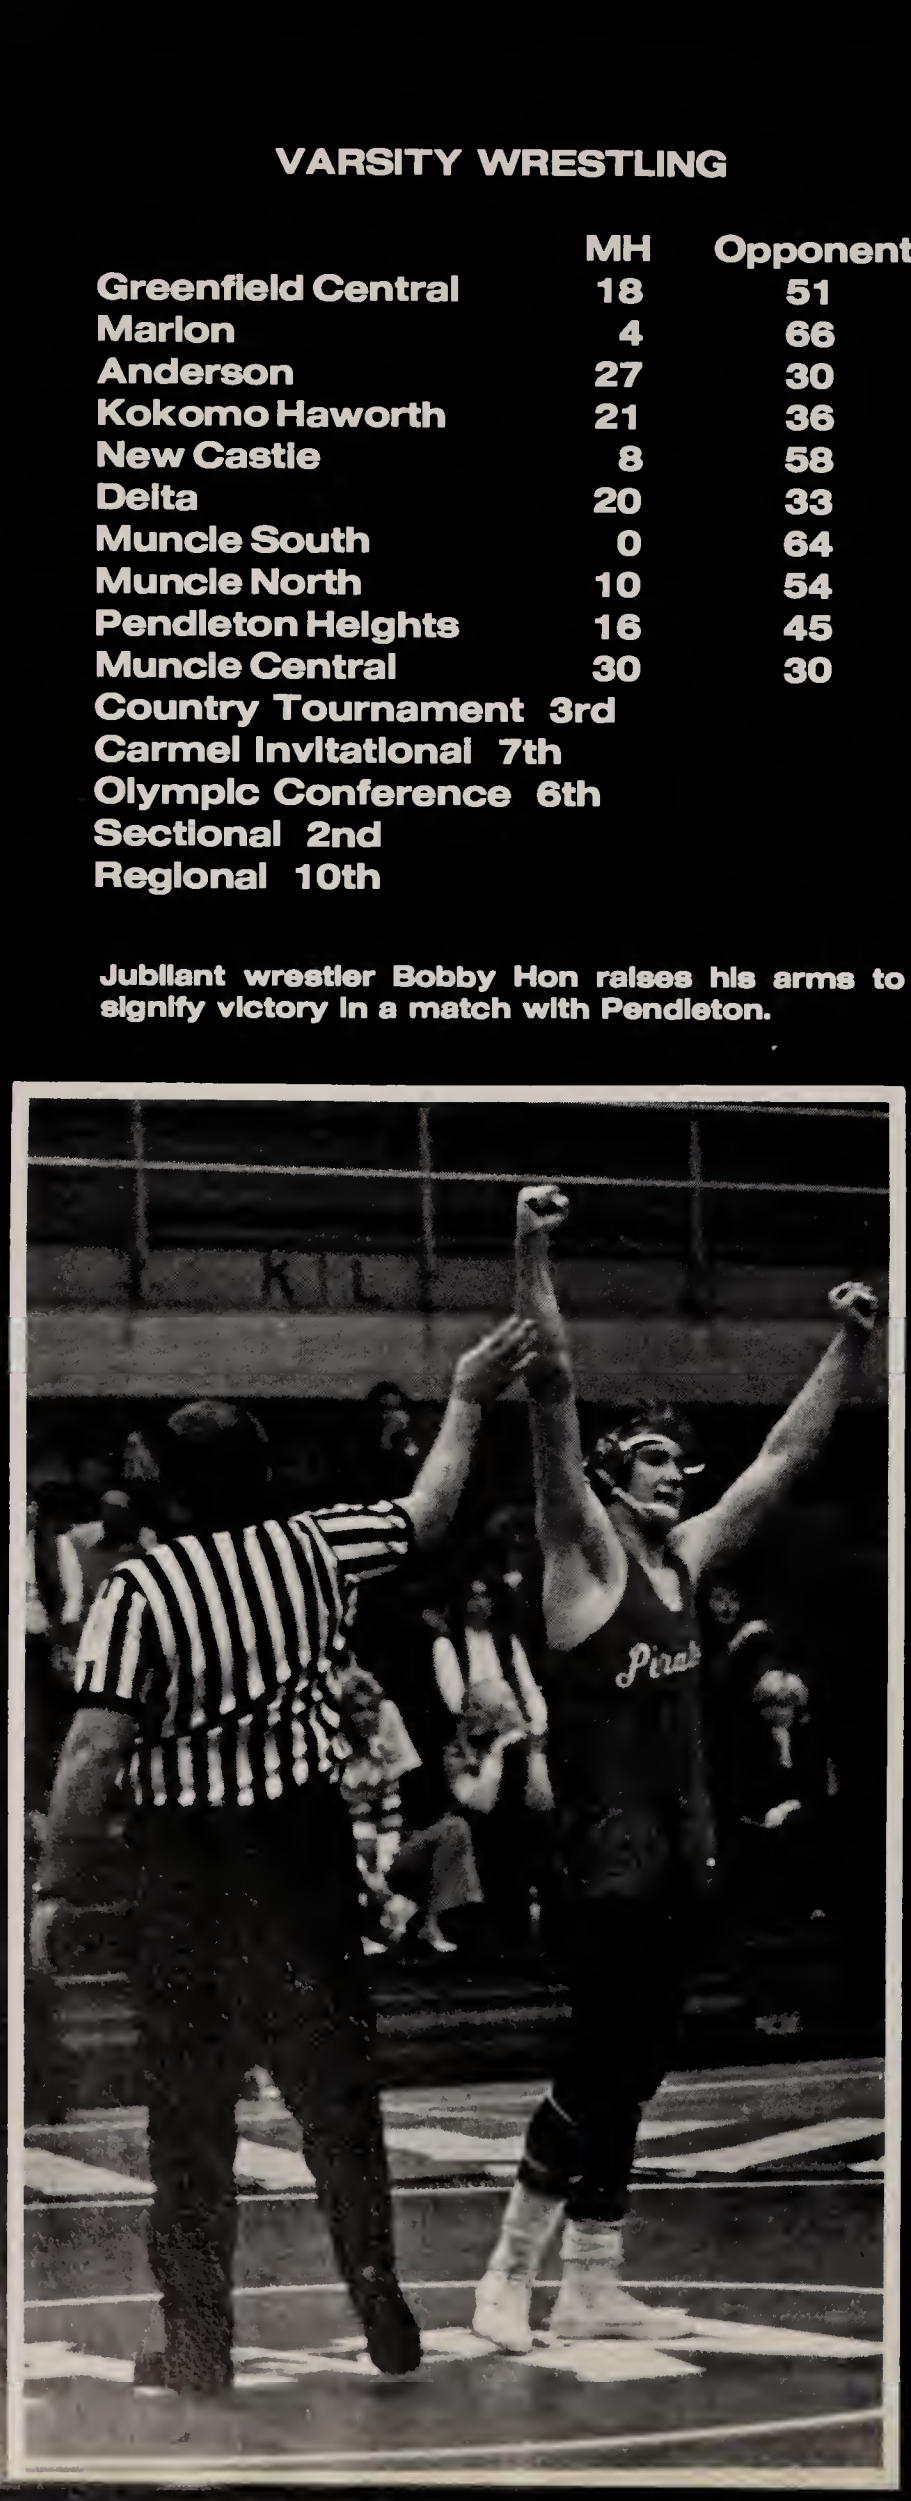
Jubilant wrestler Bobby Hon raises his arms to signify victory in a match with Pendleton.



During most of the '74-75 season, the matmen did not have anyone to compete in the two smallest weight divisions. When a team forfeits two matches almost every meet, it becomes extremely hard to win, and that is how the season went for the Pirates. Even though the Bucs had gone through the regular season without a win, they finished the season with a strong sectional showing. After the first round of the sectional, MH had ten grapplers still in the midst of sectional championship hopes. Seniors Randy Safford and LaVere Smith and sophomore Roger Gulickson placed first in the sectional in their respective classes. Junior Alex Paternoster and sophomore Bob Hon captured second-place honors. As a team, the Pirates finished runner-up. Sutton had the best won-loss record as he compiled a ten-win, four-loss, and one tie season. Safford and Clyde Briner, named Outstanding Wrestler, were County Champs.

Scarlet and Black Week Boosts Spirit

It began with spirit-boosting banners, senior derbies, and sectional spirit socks. Then came the sectional displays, and finally the student body began to adorn themselves with the scarlet and black that our school is famous for. Red and Black Week had truly begun in the genuine tradition.

School spirit ruled as several contests and special events took place. The crowning of Paul Moran as Mr. Black and Janie Webb as Miss Scarlet promoted student enthusiasm, along with the "Big Buc" contest sponsored by Pep Club. David Morgan was voted as the Pirate with the "prettiest" legs in the Gorgeous Gams contest sponsored by the Jolly Roger. Mr. Dave Nicholson and Mrs. Betty Babcoke were the recipients of the Mr. Black and Mrs. Scarlet titles, as they were chosen as the most spirited faculty members by the varsity cheerleaders. Spirit Week activities came to a close at the sectional pep convo, as winners were announced and students "brought the walls down" with enthusiasm. The Spirit Award went to the juniors.

Awaiting the results of the Gangster Day Contest, Doug Hill displays his gangster garb.

In the final sectional game, Chris Falker leaps for two points against the Alex Tigers.

Led by six returning lettermen, the '75 edition of the Madison Heights basketball team had a very successful season. The tall, talented team had depth at all positions. Sophomore Ray Tolbert helped fill one forward spot. Hot-shooting David Morgan occupied the other forward slot while big Chris Falker started at center. Richie Nunn and Joe Buck provided good ball handling at the guard spots. Coach Phil Buck could count on strong performances off the bench from Steve Tweed, Kurt Morellion, Jon Watson, or Jay Terry at the forward spots while Doug Bradford, Mark Porter, and Tom Jones provided depth as guards.

The Bucks won the regional by edging out Kokomo and then romping Blackford. Highlights of the season for Coach Buck were the Bucs' big sectional win and beating Anderson both during the regular season and the sectional. Buck also enjoyed beating the number-one ranked Titans of Muncie North and wrapping up Madison Heights' first Olympic Conference Crown in basketball.

Playing on a foreign floor, Joe Buck begins the long trip downcourt, hoping for two points.

On February 7, during half-time of the MH upset over Muncie North, a sparkling Janie Webb was crowned the 1975 TC Queen. The Pirate Palace (alias the Wigwam) stood silent as Janie, escorted by Ron Miller, was crowned by SC President Ron May. She received a dozen roses and an engraved charm bracelet from TC staffer Lisa Boblitt. The court, made up of Nancy Beehler, escorted by Steve Beebe, Debbie Jones, escorted by David Dolenski, and Linda Talley, escorted by Jim Wells, received charms. The band performed several romantic numbers during the crowning. Sixteen girls were nominated by the TC staff from the top one-third of the senior class. The entire school voted on the selection of the Queen and her court. Girls were chosen for leadership and citizenship.

Randy Wilson became the first swim team captain in MH history. The swimmer of the year award was given to senior Mike Kuhl, for having the best times in practice and meets. Exchange student Miguel Jimenez received a plaque for team recognition. Sophomore Mark Ault broke his own record in the 500-yard free style and received a trophy for establishing a new school record.

Convos Break Up School Monotony

Coordinated by Mr. B. C. Smith, convocations provided a break for MH'ers from the daily routine. At Thanksgiving, the Highlighters performed "Godspell." Fall and winter sports convocations honored athletes. One of the highlights of the year was the performance of "John and Robin," two former MH students, who sang and told how God changed their lives. The "Life Action Singers" gave a unique presentation on suicide prevention, and the student body enjoyed the return of "Under New Management." The Christmas convo consisted of several skits, some fine music, and the visit of old Saint Nick.

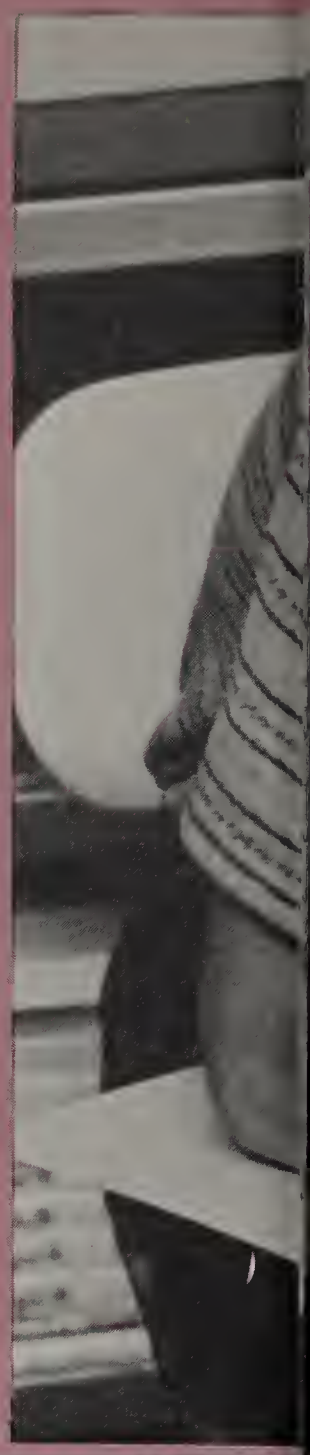
THRESHOLD OF UNDERSTANDING



"Hurry, Hurry! Step right up! Get your activities card!" Madison Heights became a social as well as a learning tree as we better understood our world through MH dramatists and choristers. We expressed ourselves through speech and debate meets, and the Academic Bowl stood for the best in academic achievement. The year brought us an understanding of different cultures. SEC introduced us to Rhea, Miguel, and Johan. With the eager eyes of children in a candy store, we sighted the Threshold of Understanding . . .

SC Gives Experiences in Government Action

Twenty-eight representatives worked together to unite students and faculty of MH during the eighteenth year of Student Council's organization. The job of each member was to represent students on governmental issues. Homecoming and the after-game dance were main events "welcoming alumni" back to MH. Convos of musical, holiday, and educational natures were promoted by the group. The Student Advisory Board was an arm of the council helping to give student complaints to the administration. The group was composed of twenty-four members; twelve representing the largest minority racial group in the school.

A large farmhouse became the Center of Campus Life happenings this year. Over the summer, ambitious CL'ers raised money to purchase the home as a full-time teen center and office. The house saw a mammoth Burger Bash start the school year off. CL'ers developed spiritually and mentally as well as socially and physically. Insight meetings helped kids to see how Jesus Christ could fit personally into their lives. Living Unit Groups were formed to help Christians grow in their faith. Weekends brought entertainment groups from Anderson College to the house. Kids and sponsors put together a haunted house called "Scream in the Dark" which brought terror as monsters jumped from dark corners and bushes. In the winter kids from all over the county spent part of Christmas vacation at a Michigan ski resort. CL'ers joined the spring vacation rush to Florida to spend a week at beaches and Disney World.

SEC Sponsors Foreign Students; Ellen Cherry

Exchange student Rhea Alsen came to America from Taby, Sweden. She stayed with Liz Gale and family this year. Rhea liked sailing, skiing, and traveling. When she returned to Sweden, Rhea planned to finish high school and attend a university to become a teacher.

Johan Troch, an 18-year old exchange student from Antwerp, Belgium, arrived in Anderson in the middle of September for his stay with the DeCrastos family. Johann was a fanatic sports enthusiast. When he went home, Johann planned to go to college to study phys. ed.

Another "member" of the DeCrastos family was Miguel Jiminez. When Miguel first came to America from Columbia, he could not speak English, but he soon learned. The most enjoyable aspect of MH, according to Miguel, was the girls. When he returns to Columbia, Miguel would like to go into architecture.

The Madison Heights Student Exchange Club interested more than 150 students and welcomed three foreign students to MH. Getting an idea of the American way of life, Rhea Alsen, Johann Troch, and Miguel Jimenez from Sweden, Belgium, and Colombia, respectively, stayed with resident families. The foreign exchange students brought with them their native customs and slides of their homelands to SEC. Senior Ellen Cherry left in January of 1975 to represent Madison Heights as an exchange student to Argentina.

SEC held bake sales and sponsored a raffle to make money to support the foreign students at Madison Heights and MH'ers who had gone abroad. Mr. Ed Zilch sponsored the club for the second year while Pat Boone, president; Liz Gale, vice-president; and Ellen Cherry, secretary-treasurer; served as officers.

Alpha Adelphi Wings Through Second Year

Making plans for the Black Recognition Week and a visit to the Black Culture Museum were goals of the Alpha Adelphi Association. Dr. Joseph Russell, President of Afro-American Affairs at I.U., spoke at a convo during Black Recognition Week. Sponsored by Mrs. Deborah Governor, Mr. Wallace McCutchen, and Mr. Doug Vermillion, Alpha Adelphi attempted to better the understanding between ethnic groups in order to promote brotherhood among races and especially among MH students. Alpha Adelphi sponsored a Homecoming float, "The Outstanding Foundation," which received an Honorable Mention award. Della Mathis was their queen candidate.

Exclusive Clubs Cater to Grades and Writing

Onomatopoela and synecdoche were literary devices used by student writers serving on publications staffs. Students working on the Treasure Chest, Bucaneer, or Jolly Roger earned membership in Quill and Scroll. Sponsored by the publications advisors, Quill and Scroll received new members and maintained many "veterans."

Students displaying blue and yellow ribbons on their clothing were new initiates into the National Honor Society. Anthology Led By Babcoke & Denniston

The staff of the 1975 Buccaneer worked under the guidance of Mrs. Betty Babcoke, who was new to MH this year. Only one edition of the school literary collection was published as staff members spent the first semester learning the basics of creative writing. This enabled the eleven seniors and ten juniors to better evaluate student contributions. Junior Dave Denniston headed the Buccaneer as editor, with senior Bonnie Bigler as assistant editor and junior Lynne Tweed as business manager. The spirit-minded group decorated the halls and participated in the Christmas Convo.

Eight members of the Debate Team attended the annual Purdue Legislative Assembly. Earning seven awards, they fared better than any previous group representing Madison Heights at the assembly. The team attended a "Model United Nations," and participated in interschool competition.

JR Adds Subscription to 1974-75 Activities

"The Jolly Roger Is Better", was seen throughout the halls and heard in all the rooms. The main change in the JR was selling a one-year subscription for the paper. Rod Richey and Judy Rinker were co-editors for the first semester, while Richey and Tim Williamson became editors second semester.

The semester Newswriting class was large. "It was so big that next year, for the first time, we may not be able to accept everyone who wants to be on the JR staff," stated Sponsor Mr. Ed Roettinger. The vocational school printed the bi-weekly paper which included special Christmas, tournament, prom, and senior issues.

TC Becomes Class; Woods Oversees Team

For the first time, Treasure Chest became a class and members received grades for their work. Led by Editor Debbie Woods and Assistant Editor Nancy Beehler, the staff was composed of eighteen seniors, eleven juniors, and one sophomore. Sponsor Mrs. Ann Smith proved to be the stable factor of the project. When a non-staffer entered the room beneath the bleachers, he was amused by the graffiti-covered walls. For staff, the walls were a source of inspiration; a reminder of previous staffs.

Perhaps the most valuable thing learned by staff members was cooperation. A smile and a "thanks" made everyone's job easier.

While hosting a yearbook barbecue, senior Deb Woods avidly shares one of her adventures.

As a TC photographer, senior Paul Moran takes part in the journalism workshop at BSU.

Chess Lovers Ponder Tactics and Defenses

The members of the Madison Heights Chess Club, sponsored by Mr. Doug Vermillion, saw encouraging changes this year. Besides playing chess during the meetings which were held the first, second, and third Mondays of every month, president Eric Fischvogt presented lessons on the development of certain moves by chess players such as Bobby Fisher. During the second semester, MH Chess Club members, most of whom belonged to the United States Chess Federation, were playing chess "buffs" from other schools in the surrounding area. At the end of the year, a chess set was donated to the library.

Interests Range From Psychiatry to Geriatrics

"I'd much rather have French fries than a baked potato," said Kathy Rosborough at the Caduceus banquet held on October 30th at the Lucky Steer Steakhouse. Over twenty initiates clamoured for French fries after going through an initiation ceremony which involved squeezing cow tongues and chicken gizzards.

Five officers presided over the meetings of the Caduceus Medical Association. Along with Sponsor Mr. Jim Jones, the officers scheduled meetings and arranged for field trips and speakers. Though dedicated to the medical profession, Caduceus members nevertheless found time to construct a Homecoming float in October.

Actors and Actresses Show Hidden Talent

Under the leadership of first-year sponsor Mrs. Joyce Thayer, Drama Club experienced a rebirth in 1974-75. Beginning the years' activities with a Halloween Reader's Theatre Production in the library, Drama Club continued to flourish with productions in nursing homes at Christmas and a skit in the Talent Convo. The Club's major spring production, "Night of January 16th" proved successful for the club and valuable to the players. Officers of the club included Stacy Simmons, president; Phil Buck, vice-president; Nancy Oljace, secretary; and Terri Carmack, treasurer.

Speechmakers Sponsor MH's 1st Home Meet

Beginning its second year as an organized body, the Speech Team, headed by Speech and English teacher Mrs. Joyce Thayer, extended its schedule and added more members to its ranks. The experienced squad was led by President Dan Winkel, Vice-President Debbie Zeabart, Secretary Tricia Manifold, and Treasurer David ~~Reetor~~ Rinker. One new goal was for every member to compete in at least two of the categories offered in competition. The sixteen-member team devoted much effort to compiling team points and winning sweepstakes trophies. MH held its first speech meet at the school on February 8th.

—FHA Enthusiasm Grows;— Members Host Picnic

Focusing on individual growth, family education, devolopment of occupational competence, preparation for marriage and careers, and the role of young people in society, FHA continued to be an active club. Meeting twice a month, the club was sponsored by Mrs. Donna Sharp. Activities included a Christmas party with the Pendleton Heights FHA. In Feburary, a special dinner was held, with members inviting their special friends. Representatives who contributed most to the organization were selected to attend a two-day State Convention at Indianapolis. At the end of the year, the FHA members hosted a picnic for freshman girls in order to encourage them to take home ec classes and join FHA.

FTA became FEA in 1974-75, and the club attempted to teach future teachers the ABC's of teaching. Miss Donna Thorsen, new to the English Department this year, was sponsor for the Future Educators of America. Under her direction, club members made two trips to Ball State University; once to attend the State Orientation Conference for future educators, and again to see a BSU football game.

President Cindy Noll and treasurer Don Bell organized FEA's trip to the Regional Conference at Anderson High School on December 7. Club members attended different area schools to observe teaching methods.

Females Sporting Re-inforce Activities

During 1974-75 some sixty girls aided the swimmers, gymnasts, and runners at their home meets. Assisting the swim team this season were the Bucettes, sponsored by Mr. Harold Thompson. Approximately fifteen out of the thirty members were needed to serve at each home meet. Some of their duties were timing relays, scoring, announcing, and tabulating diving scores.

Headed by Janie Webb and sponsored by Mr. Dale Lechlitner, a crew of fifteen gymnettes assisted our Pirate gymnasts at their home meets. Their main duties were announcing, tallying scores, and aiding the judges.

Twenty extremely busy girls served the MH track team as Cinderellas. Mr. Jim Jones sponsored the group, and held five one-hour classes to teach them about track and field events. Their tasks included timing relays, measuring distances, judging fouls, and assisting judges.

Cheerleaders Personify MHHS Athletic Pride

VARSITY CHEERLEADERS—Jerri Carter, Linda Talley, Jodi Novak, Kelly McKain, Debbie Jones, Susie Akers.

MH varsity cheerleaders were busy this year supporting all athletic teams. The cheerleaders were pleased with the "improved support and enthusiasm of the student body." The varsity squad consisted of seniors Susie Akers, Debbie Jones, and Linda Talley, and junior members were Jerri Carter, Kelly McKain, and Jodi Novak.

The reserve squad was made up of sophomores Myra Culnane, Robin Melson, Cindy Palmer, and Lesa Poer. These girls cheered at reserve football and basketball games. The Pirate basketball team was led onto the floor by senior mascot Paul Moran. Paul, a letterman in gymnastics, performed a round-off followed by flips and aerials.

Thrilled with a great Pirate play, varsitiars Jodi Novak and Kelly McKain yell for more.

Mrs. Dent and Pep Club officers form a huddle as the race begins to get Pep Club seats.

Sporting new outfits of red sweaters and blue jeans, the 100-member Pep Club, sponsored by Mrs. Pat Dent, was more active than past Pep Clubs. Early organization last spring enabled the girls to construct a first-prize-winning Homecoming float.

The MH "Huddle" of the national FCA organization, sponsored by Mrs. Coramae Simmons, gave girls a chance to show interest in sports. They planned money-making projects and an overnight excursion at the YWCA.

The boys FCA was sponsored by Mr. Jim Jones. In addition to the annual FCA Conference this year, another conference was held near Turkey Run State Park. The Indianapolis Racers, a new hockey franchise, gave the FCA members an opportunity to see the "new sport in town."

M-Club Makes Money; Ushers Clean Up Gym

M-Club Presidents Maleah Stringer and Joe Buck sack cans of food collected for the needy.

Working to earn money for the annual M-Club dance was the major activity for the nineteen -year old organization. Sponsor Dave Nicholson and Athletic Director Paul Bradford founded the idea to raise money. The M-Club set up a concession stand for junior high basketball games, varsity and reserve wrestling meets, and boys' and girls' gymnastics events. For the first time, girls become a part of M-Club. Membership requirements included earning a varsity letter in one sport and attending initiation.

Ushers cleaned the gym floor at half-time of home basketball games and crawled through the maze under the bleachers in search of articles varying from contact lenses to coats.

Displaying his domestic talents, Mr. Paul Bradford uses the right detergent for PE towels.

MH'ERS FOLLOW TRAILS OF DONKEY AND GOP

Active Young Republicans Jan Williams and Rayna Ray work on plans to support candidates.

As Election Day drew near, politically-minded MH'ers joined the ranks of the schools' two political organizations. Conservative students rallied under the GOP banner with Mr. Doug Vermillion and Mr. Bob Humphrey serving as sponsors. Young Republicans worked at Republican Headquarters on Election Day, and members planned a candidate information program.

Sponsored by Mrs. Linda Curren, Mr. Bill Riffe, and Mr. Mike Sokol, the Young Democrats adopted a constitution and entered a Homecoming float. Queen candidate Brenda Brundage won a place in the Queens' Court. Bayh supporters served on phoning committees on Election Day and enjoyed lunches catered by Linder's.

Languages Assist MH's Awareness

"E Pluribus Unum." "Bonjour!" "Wie Gehts?" "Estoy bien, gracias." "And how are you?"

Every student at Madison Heights heard and understood at least one of these phrases during the past year. Jumbled masses of nouns, pronouns, and "upside-down question marks" became meaningful sentences. Language Department Head Mr. Ed Van Horn believed that language was indeed an art—something to be learned carefully and treated delicately. Many MH'ers strove for proficiency and fluency in one of the four foreign languages as well as in English.

With great anticipation, speaker Mlke Chapin carefully selects an impromptu speech topic.

Honors Comp students play Jeopardy in a presentation to improve modifier usage.

Attempting to master the art of English, Miquel Jimenez receives help from Joan Evans.

Confused about how to diagram a sentence, Michael Teague gets help from Mrs. Babcoke.

Relating experiences as a gang leader and pusher, Vince Guerra talks to English students.

Thirteen Chance Trying Calculus

Headed by Mr. Roy Blount, the Math Department had no changes in curriculum. All teachers remained in their previous positions. New math textbooks were up for adoption, and an extensive search for the proper books for the next five years began. Enrollment continued to decline, especially in the advanced classes. Fifty-five students participated in the five-year math course. Twenty-three sophomores took both Algebra III and IV and Geometry, the requirements for the first year in this advanced course. Thirteen seniors took their lives in their hands and attempted to probe the mysteries of Calculus.

Noses Go Up To Rotten Egg Gas

Surrounding rooms were often plagued by the smell of "rotten egg" gas or formaldehyde as the Science Department tried to pass on a bit of its expertise to students eager to unravel the mysteries of life. With help from teachers and texts, the students learned practical applications of the ever-growing scientific field.

Welcomed to the staff this year was physics and chemistry teacher Mr. William Tozer, who replaced Mr. Bob Sloan. Department Head Mr. Jim Jones envisaged expansion in the form of renovated and enlarged lab facilities, as well as the eventual institution of a one-semester botany course.

A break in Anatomy studies provides Doug DeGraffenreid time for aquatic observation.

MCLAIN CONTINUES QUEST FOR VALUES

Getting away from the routine, Mr. Sokol treats Current Problems students to a filmstrip.

During a World History class, puppets show the causes and effects of the Persian Wars.

Social Studies Department Head Henry McLain stood against the stereotyped teacher and text and urged students to search for values and concepts. The department attempted to incorporate "learning through experience" and to encourage MH'ers to branch out on their own with emphasis on individuality. Urged to participate in community affairs, students attended governmental meetings, went on field trips, and joined the school's political organizations. As a result, MH students prepared to step over the threshold of adulthood with a little more than the usual list of dates, times, and events.

Variety Provided To Art Students

. . .Ceramics, sculptures, paper mache, linoleum, mosaics, clay. . . All of these and many more materials and methods were used by sophs, juniors, and seniors in Mr. John Riley's art classes. There seemed to be something for everyone in one of MH's nine art courses. MH artists undertook projects including still-life drawing, wood and wire sculpturing, plaster carvings, and mosaics. Ceramic sculpturing was tackled by advanced students. Art History proved to be interesting in that it covered the development of all kinds of art forms from prehistoric to modern times.

Molding and shaping the clay, senior Shawn Hite works on a project for her art class.

Industrial Classes Develop Aptitudes

Students in Metals I class learn the trade of metalography from instructor Mr. Hodson.

The Industrial Education Department added a new teacher to its staff this year as Mr. Michael Sheets replaced Mr. Ronald Schroeder, teaching Power and Transportation, Electricity and Electronics, and Drafting. The most popular course, Electricity was offered for the second year at Madison Heights. A total of 350 students acquired knowledge in the Industrial Arts field.

The main purpose of the courses was to teach the students basic skills in the entire area, not just one subject. Mr. Harold Thompson, Power and Electricity teacher and department head, directed this exploratory division of the curriculum.

Home Ec Attracts Additional Males

Attendance rose in home economics classes this year as more male students enrolled. Family Living was a course which saw both males and females discovering the problems of marriage and family life. Heated discussions were heard coming from the room as students vehemently expressed their opinions. Child Development was designed to aid in understanding personal development from childhood to adulthood. Interpersonal Relations dealt with everyday contact of people. Consumer Education, another of the home ec courses, helped students better understand problems of family finance. Housing was designed to explain the furnishing, decorating, renting of a home.

Preparing a festive meal for her classmates, Sherri Wall stirs her dish to perfection.

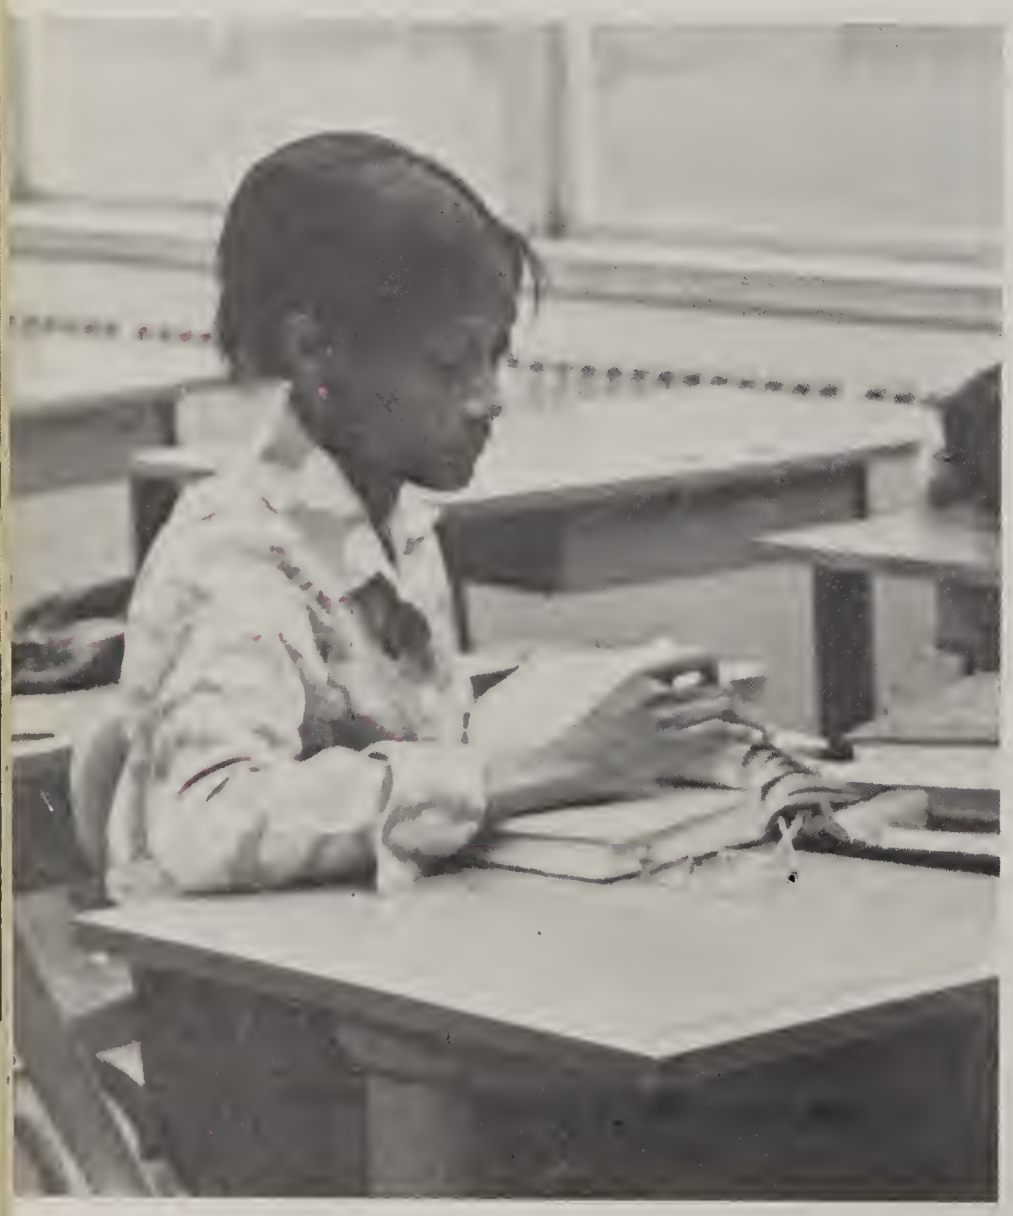
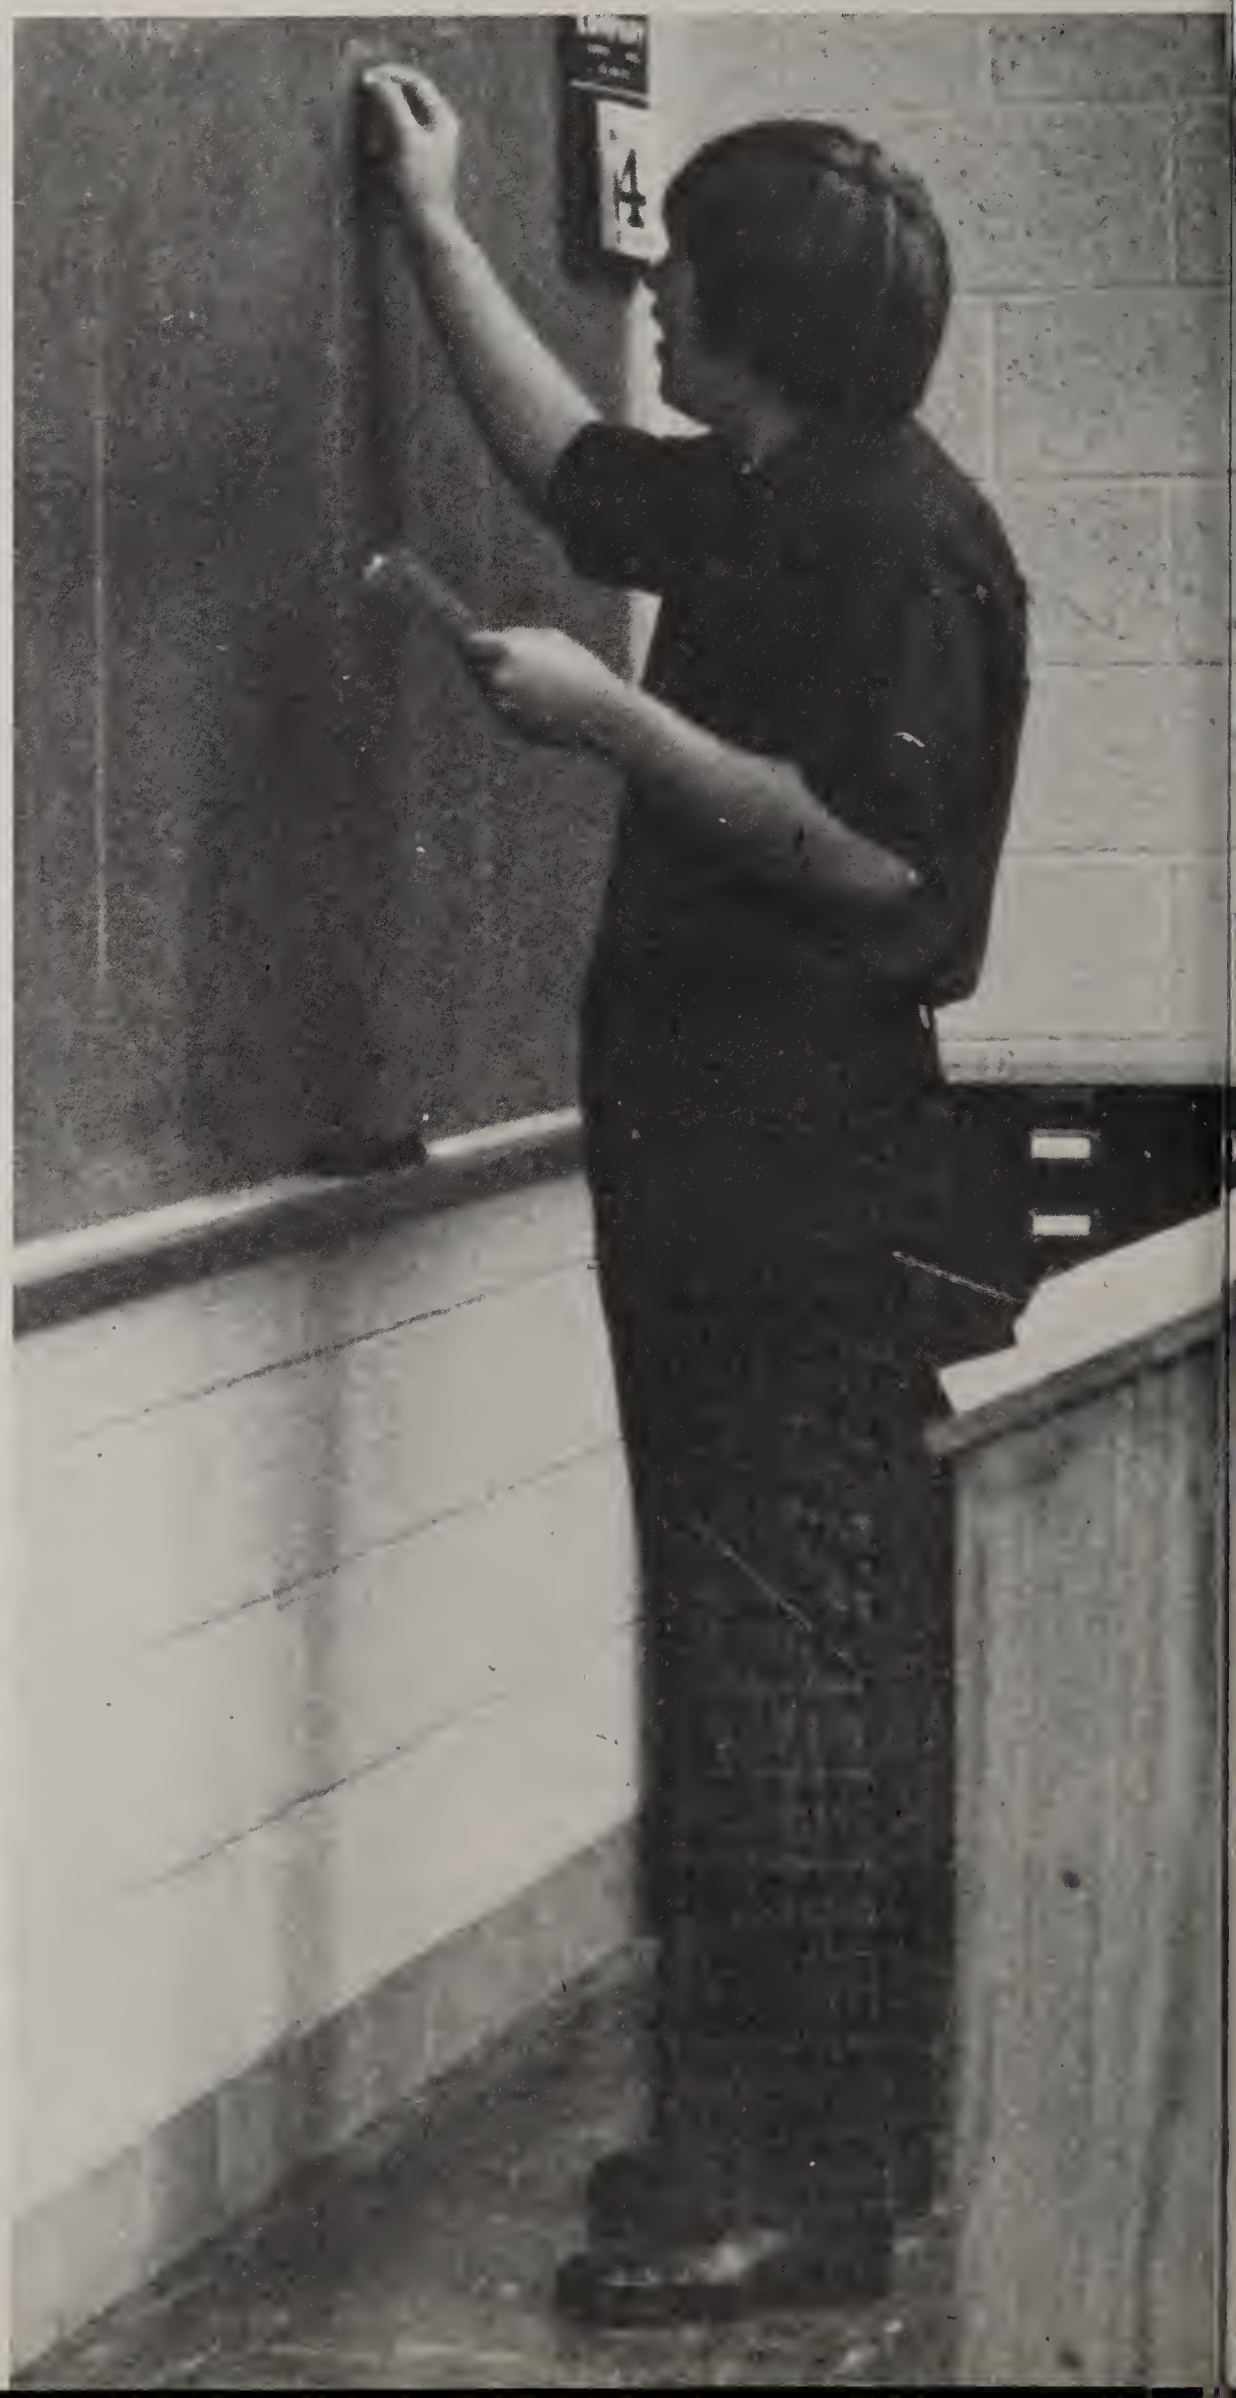
BUSINESS DRAWS 708 IN CLASSES

Business courses continued to be popular with students this year as over half the school - 708 classmen - enrolled in at least one business class. One hundred thirty of these planned to complete, or had already completed, a major in business. The thirteen subjects offered ranged from Personal Typing to Business Principles. Typing headed the list of favorites, with an enrollment of 370 students. Constant equipment updating included two dictaphones and additional calculators. Mrs. June Creed, head of the department since the opening of Madison Heights, led the staff.



Thumbing through the pages of her text, senior Cathy Mathis intently studies during ICE.

Bob Muller spends his first period each day tackling the techniques of accounting.



Trying to keep up, seniors Nancy Bernhart and Rita Creech do paper work in bookkeeping.

Continuing her business class work, senior Carol Lowe keeps busy by filing index cards.

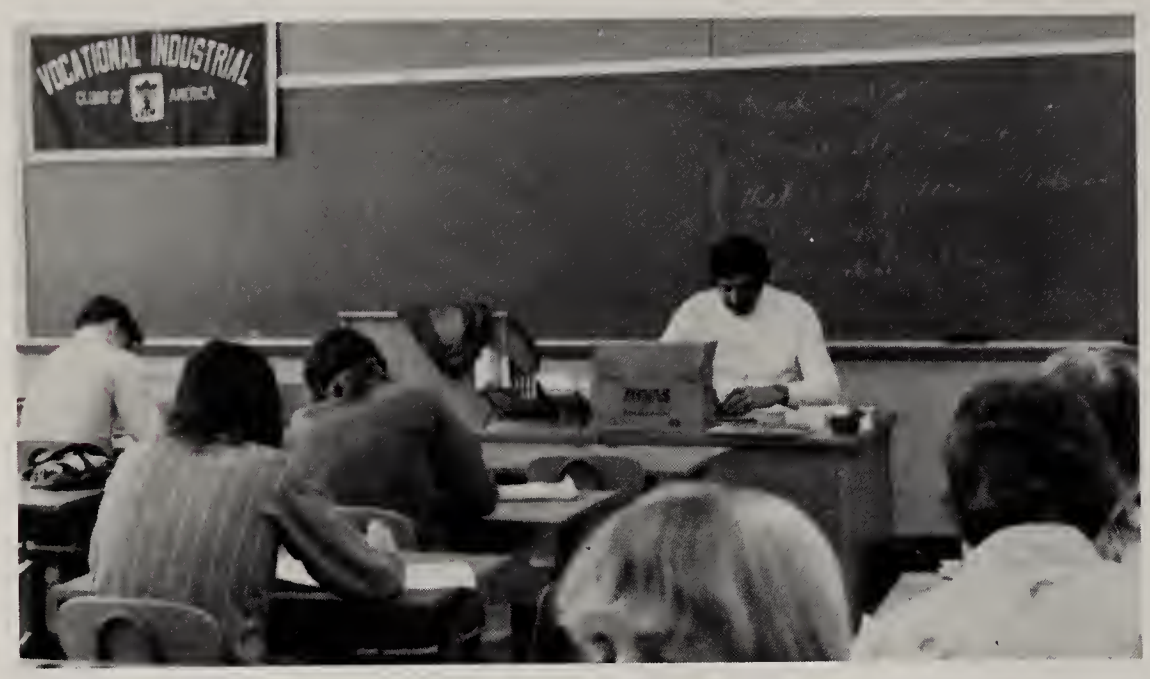
VICA, OWE and ICE Increase Student Jobs

VICA students and Mr. Humphrey designate places in Anderson where one can borrow money.



The Inter-disciplinary Cooperative Education class provided a place of study for students who were training for a vocation. Students interested in office education, marketing and sales, health, and industry were aided in finding jobs. The ICE classes formed a branch of the Vocational-Industrial Clubs of America. The club raised money for the annual Employer-Appreciation Banquet in the spring. Both ICE and VICA were sponsored by Mr. Bob Humphrey.

The Occupational Work Experience classes were utilized by students for study purposes. The OWE students received credit for the work they did outside the class, and they gained valuable working experience.

Skills for Future Provided by AAVS

While meeting requirements for graduation at high school, students interested in learning a trade or skill also attended the Anderson Area Vocational School. The vocational school, whose facilities were available to some fourteen area schools, offered a variety of courses ranging from Merchandising to Auto Mechanics. Madison Heights enrolled approximately 180 students this year. The school provided a place in which students could learn a basic skill to apply towards a vocation. Besides being offered to high school students, AAVS was open to adults.

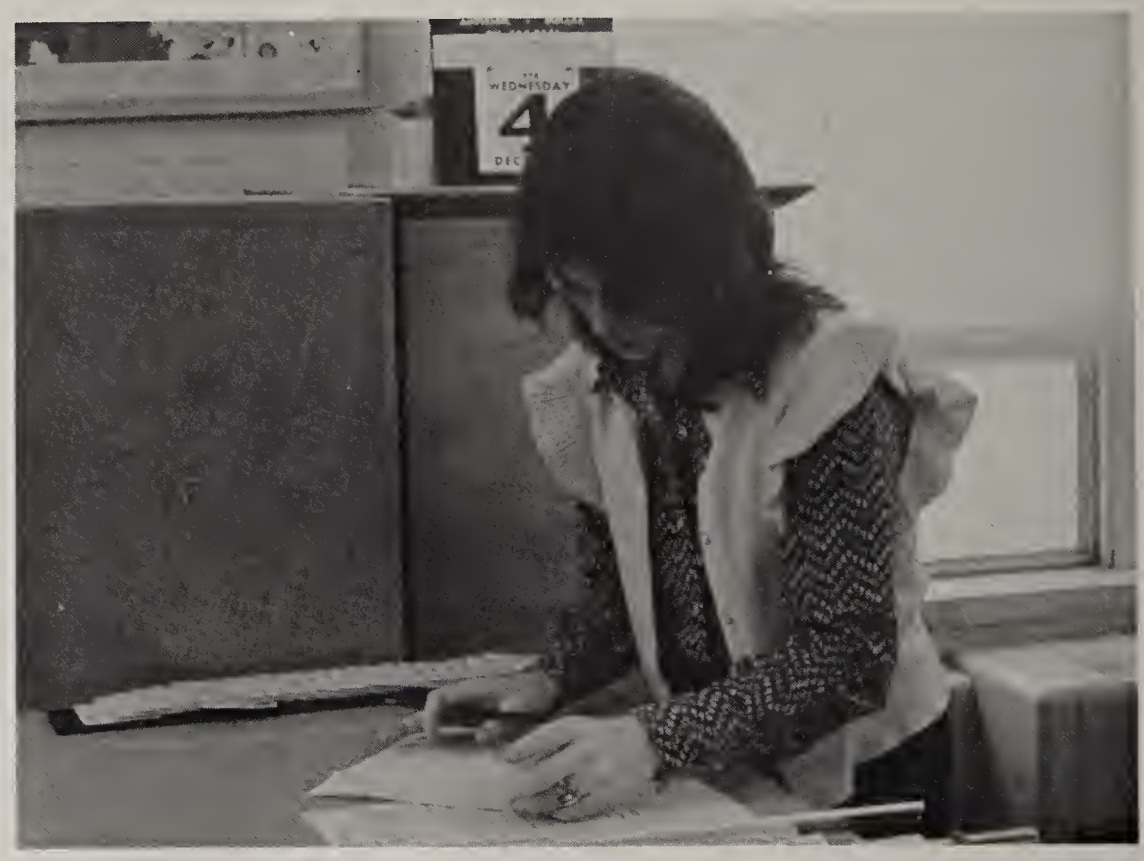
Specialized MH Staff— Value Assistants' Aid

Library assistant Charlotte Kornman goes over a magazine check-out list for Mrs. Felmlee.



Putting books in the stacks by code, fiction or nonfiction, and height, along with learning the card catalog kept thirteen library assistants busy. Assistants were selected and trained by Mrs. Mildred Felmlee.

Eight audio-visual assistants aided Mr. Jerry Williams in filling requests for films, film strips, records, tapes, and equipment. Spare time was filled with graphic art work, dry mounting, and lettering techniques.

Trash cans painted with the Pirate insignia, a car bash, bake sales, and a dance headed the list of Service Club activities. Led by Mrs. Deborah Governor, sixty-two members assisted MH administrators.

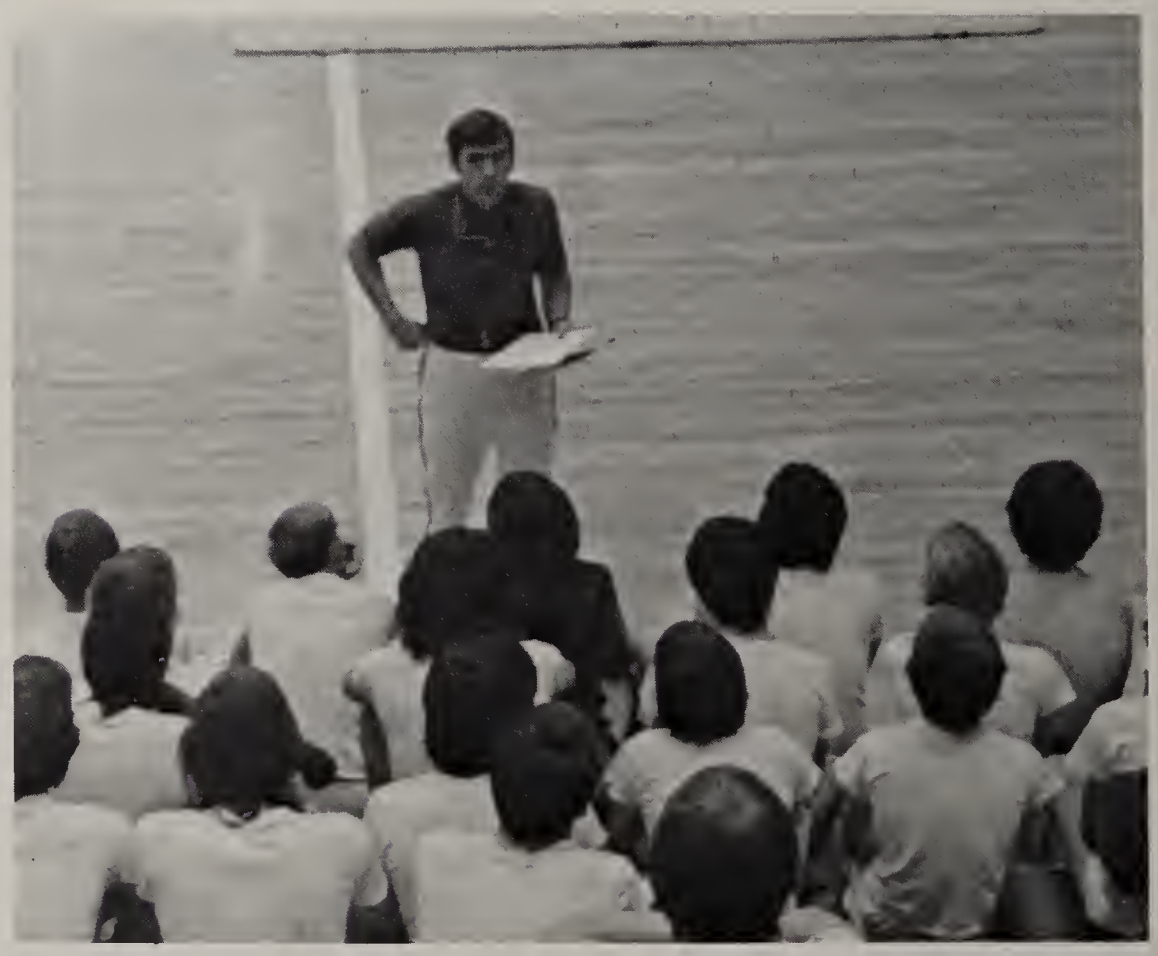
Students Improve Bowling Prowess

During first period phys ed, sophomore San Shelby tries various skills on the horse.

Following a busy schedule, PE Department Head Mrs. Maxine Barcus began girls' activities with touch football, field hockey, and softball. Trips to Fairview Tennis Courts and Meadowbrook Golf Course added spark to PE. The girls moved indoors to participate in tumbling and gymnastics.

Mr. Paul Gray kept his boys as occupied as Mrs. B's girls. One of their important activities was the President's Physical Fitness Test. The boys' outdoor sports were touch football, soccer, and softball. Indoors, the guys participated in basketball, gymnastics, and volleyball. Later they tried their hand at wrestling and weightlifting. Boys and girls were skill-tested over every activity and each class went bowling weekly.



A host of hardy sophs listen attentively as PE teacher Mr. Gray assigns them their tasks.

After practicing some skills, Cindy Francis and Debbie Simmons play a game of basketball.

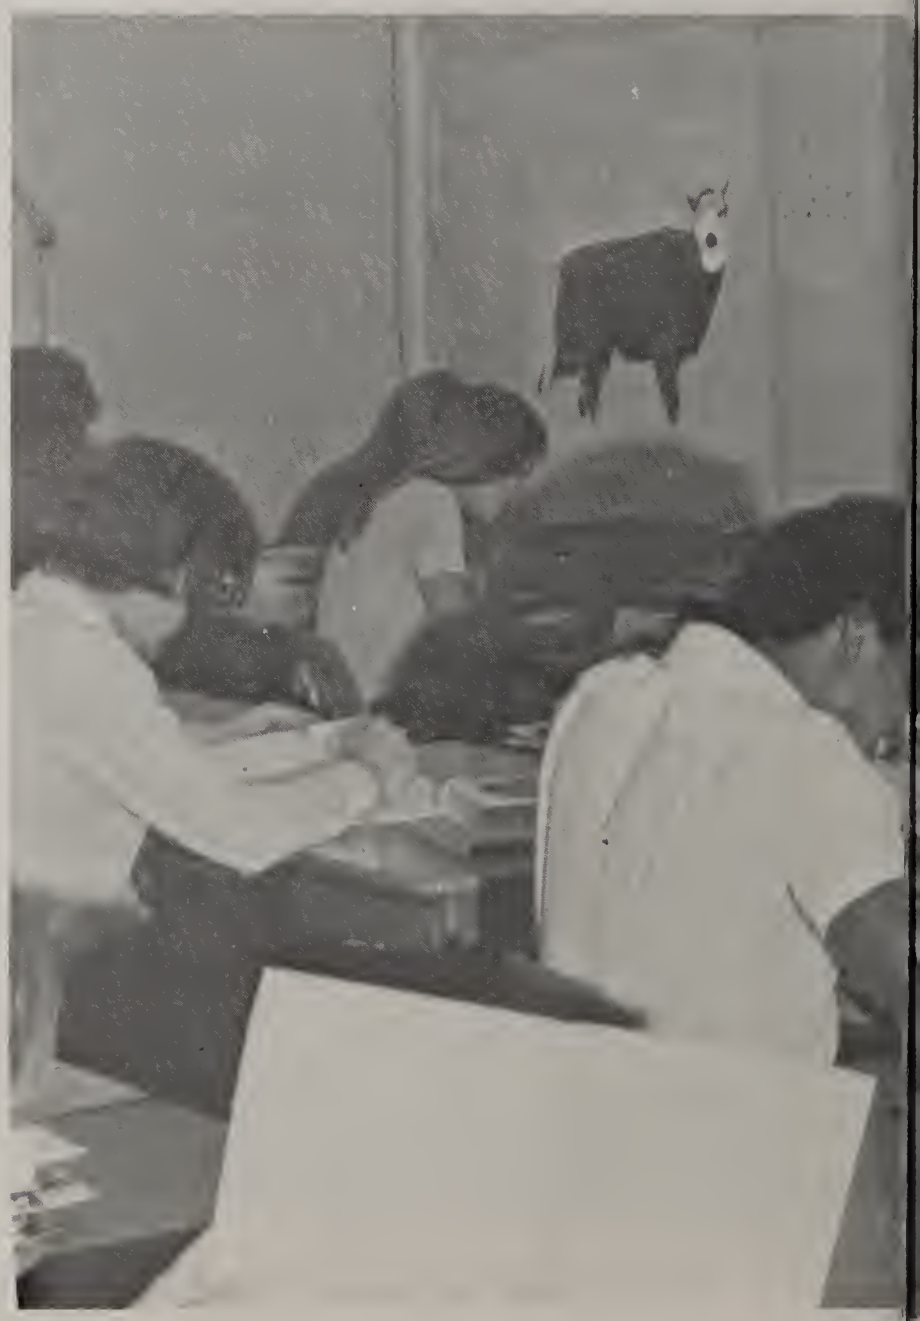
"Lady, you don't know how lucky you are!" was heard coming from a driver's ed car as a bicyclist narrowly escaped being hit. Though many telephone poles, and innumerable trash cans came close to doom while students learned to drive, by semester-break the drivers felt ready for the "Indy 500". The driving experience was aided by classroom study. The Porta-Clinic helped students judge distance and timing. Movies showed students how to react in case of an accident, and workbooks assisted in explaining safety on the road.

Safety, another one-semester course, began where driver's ed left off by introducing industrial safety, safety in the home, Red Cross first-aid, and civil defense to the "accident-prone" high schoolers. Speakers were brought in to discuss fire safety. Student demonstrations and a variety of films enhanced this course.

A premonition of the impending fate makes the driver's ed teachers reluctant to emerge.

Relieved, Mr. Good doesn't know that he was being watched by Hervie Terry and Mark Trinkle.



Students Get Into Practical Courses

Hurst Directs Strings; Doug Is Head Bulb

The State Conference and the Spring program were the main performances for Mr. Floyd Hurst and his orchestra. "The orchestra was exceedingly small this year because of scheduling problems at the senior high," stated a somewhat dejected Mr. Hurst. "I expect next year's group to be more enthusiastic with the good prospects from the junior high groups."

Lights, . . . Camera, . . . Ac—Wait a minute! What happened to the lights? Special activities such as plays and dances were lighted by the Lighting Crew. The Blue Bell Ball was the biggest event of the year for the crew. They also supplied the far-out and freaky set-up for the talent convo. "If MH had any musicals or variety shows," stated the head bulb Doug Hill, "we'd light them."

Concert Choir was composed of fifty-eight accomplished vocalists. Plans for the year included a Christmas concert, and the choir hosted the Madison County Choral Festival. Accompanying the choir this year was sophomore pianist Doug Fletcher.

Girls Chorus sported new outfits this year, choosing blue dresses with red flowers. The thirty-member troupe performed at nursing homes and joined the Concert Choir for many performances. Leanna Waltz and Chandra Baker acted as accompanists.

Choir members this year voted to select one set of officers to preside over all four choirs. This decision bettered choir organization and unify.

Informal Style Sparks More Popular Demand

Using a more informal approach than in previous years, the Highlighters, under the direction of Mr. Stan Ray, chose more contemporary outfits and a wider range of music for performances. Mr. Ray changed the number of singers from twelve members to twenty, ten boys and ten girls. This increase added to the groups tone and variety while not detracting from the choir's selectness. The twelve juniors and eight seniors also added new choreography.

An unusually large number of students joined Mixed Choir. Thirty five sophomores trained for Concert Choir. Their performances were given mainly at school and with the other choirs. They also joined in singing in the County Choral Festival. Accompanying the underclassmen group was sophomore Cathy Burton.

Spirit and Unification Characteristics of Band

This year's 131-member Marching Band of Pirates copped first-place honors at Shelby County and Southport and placed tenth at State Fair, delighting audiences with fancy footsteps and flashy music. Beginning practice in June, the band worked hard all summer. At Band Camp at Turkey Run, they strove to perfect their music. Led for the eighth year by Mr. James Patton, the band functioned as a unified, spirited group.

Stage Band became a class this year. Composed of seventeen members, Stage Band played at Open House and performed with the Highlighters. They specialized in the big band sounds of Glenn Miller and David Rose.

Twirlers Pace Band To Top Ten Placing

Led by Head Majorette Janie Webb, the Heightsteppers began their preparations for Band Day 1974 early in June. They practiced twice daily in June and three times daily in August. The majorettes and flags attended Band Camp at Turkey Run for final improvements before State Fair. Mr. Stan Ray helped the majorettes and flag girls with their routines. The flag captain this year was junior Lisa Moore, and choreographer was ex-band member Lisa Hathcoat. The flag girls wore new outfits consisting of black skirts with white blouses, red cummerbunds, red scarfs, and red tams. Along with the Heightsteppers they led the band to a tenth-place finish at the State Fair Contest.

THRESHOLD OF BECOMING

"People, people everywhere, and not a moment to talk." Our crowded halls made it hard to have a conversation between classes. But despite the rush, we found time for both work and play. With their first step over the MH threshold, freshmen became sophomores. As class rings were lost and found, sophs groped their way through new halls. Juniors concentrated on Prom, while seniors watched their year escape. While we worked and played, the faculty watched us. They knew what we didn't yet know: we were on the Threshold of Becoming . . .

Seniors End Busy Year

The class of 1975 found the past year a busy one. Among the many activities of the seniors were building a Homecoming float, measuring one another for caps and gowns, ordering announcements, planning the Senior Dance, and making schedule changes to fulfill graduation requirements.

This year's graduates entered the MH gym for the last time clad in blue caps and gowns. The class motto—"Look to this day, for yesterday is already a dream, and tomorrow is only a vision"—appeared on the commencement programs, and parents flocked to see their "babies" graduate into the adult world. With fond remembrances of the Senior Pizza Party and arms loaded with autographed yearbooks, the upperclassmen left MH a message for all to "study hard, play hard, and above all, be happy" during their high school days.

Seniors Face Unknown

Over lunch, Ron May, Jeff Boards, David Morgan, and Kent Peters discuss school activities.

We entered the big building as small, terrified sophomores. We didn't know what was going to happen, but whatever it was, we weren't ready for it. Things got rolling as we chose class colors and rings.

Before we knew it, we were juniors. Our major project was the prom. As the walls came tumbling down, weary prom-workers cried.

As seniors, Vance Gulickson led the class through commencement. As we left MH, we realized that one thing hadn't changed—we still didn't know what was going to happen, and we still weren't ready for it.

Huffines Wins Crocker Award

On December 3, 1974, Karen Huffines competed with other seniors in a written knowledge and aptitude test. This test, sponsored by General Mills Incorporated, was to determine the winner of this year's Betty Crocker Award. The tests were taken and then sent back to General Mills to be graded. When the results returned, Karen had won. She was named Betty Crocker's 1974-75 Family Leader of Tomorrow at Madison Heights. This award qualified Karen to compete for state and national honors. It also enabled her to vie for a scholarship of up to $3000.

The Daughters of the American Revolution award of Madison Heights went to senior Stacy Simmons. To qualify for the award, Stacy took a test involving questions about American government, history, and patriotism. The test was given by Mr. Mike Sokol and graded by Mr. Bill Riffe. After winning at MH, Stacy competed with girls from other county schools in the county DAR test. This test asked about the individual's school activities and achievements. At the end of the year, Stacy received a pin from Mr. Wann. She also attended a DAR tea.

Newby Cops NMSQT

Reaching the National Merit Scholarship semi-finals this year was senior Dale Newby. The semi-finalists were determined by the PSAT scores from the junior year. This honor was bestowed on only one-half of the top one percent on the nation. Approximately 90 percent of the semi-finalists became finalists who were eligible for a variety of scholarships ranging from $1,000 scholarships to four-year full rides. Dale took many difficult honors courses such as Composition Honors and Calculus. He planned to go to Rose-Hulman to continue his schooling.

NCTE awards were presented to Stacy Simmons and Rod Richey after nomination by the MH Language Arts Department. The National Council of Teachers of English gave their award to 850 of the 6200 participants. Students entering were required to submit an autobiography along with their best previous work. The three MH'ers were taken to a room and given one hour to complete an impromptu theme. The theme was to be a letter to an important person telling why the student admired him. Stacy wrote to King Richard III, while Rod acknowledged James Bond.

Seniors Have Busy Year

The class of '75 ended its stay at MH with a "Bang". Senior Week was active for the graduates. The annual Cap and Gown Day was held May 20 as seniors took their finals. May 21 was designated as Dress Up Day. Two periods of exams were followed by the Awards Convo and the end of the school for the Class of 1975. The next day, the grads came back for Commencement practice and the Yearbook Pizza Party. On May 27, the seniors left for a fun-filled day at King's Island. After graduation on May 28, the seniors were dismissed to the rest of their lives.

Pugsley, Fraley Honored

This year another award was added to those given by the MH Music Department. The first recipient of the Louis Armstrong Award was senior bandsman Steve Pugsley. Steve met the high requirements of showing interest in jazz through superior musicianship, outstanding character, and personal creativity.

The John Phillips Sousa Award went to Shea Fraley. Shea went "above and beyond the call of duty" by improving academically as well as musically, showing great interest in and loyalty to the band, and contributing time to the group.

Seniors Seek Salaries

Summertime was spent earning badly-needed money as many of us found the impossible—jobs. Senior class president Vance Gulickson, Nancy Beehler, Liz Gale, and Deb Woods dipped at Baskin-Robbins. Randy Safford was employed at Delco-Remy while David Dolenski worked at Guide Lamp. Local supermarkets were places of employment as Kevin Rankel and Gregg Delwey worked at Mathews. MCL Cafeteria employed Susan Gray and Curt Steinmetz. The theaters were also haunted by job-seeking seniors as Cheryl Adams and Jana Dollar both saw action at the South Drive-in.

Senior Expense Runs Rampant

"You've got to have money anymore in order to do anything." This quote was often heard as we realized the expenses of being a senior. We had the normal expenses which loom over every other class—the dates, lunch, the "all class" dances, the yearbook, the JR, and season tickets. But, to add salt to the wound, we had to pay for senior pictures, the senior dance, announcements, caps and gowns, and the senior trip. Some of us, however, chose to do without a few of these "senior items" and use the money for other activities, such as concerts and clothes.

Taking top honors in the senior class were Rob Wise and Stacy Simmons. Valedictorian Rob Wise ended his MH stay with a 4.125 ratio. Salutatorian Stacy Simmons came in a close second with a 4.113 average. Both students took honors courses which accounted for the above 4.0 ratio. Stacy and Rob led the seniors into the MH gymnasium for graduation ceremonies. The two seniors received medals for their scholastic achievements. Stacy planned to attend Ball State University and major in French. Rob wished to go to Indiana University to study law.

Seniors Watch Time Pass

We drifted along not thinking too much about the time which was slipping by so quickly. We were big, bad, beautiful seniors. It was OUR year. With this in mind, we became involved in our school work, athletics, and "extra-curricular activities." (We were determined to have fun.) We were going to enjoy this last year . . . Last Year! Suddenly, out of nowhere, the end of the year was drawing rapidly near. For some of us, this meant no more homework. For others, this meant much more homework. But for all of us, it meant leaving some of our dearest friends . . .

Seniors Live For Today

As we thought of this, tears flowed unceasingly down our cheeks. Then a hand was on our shoulders. We looked up and saw our best friend. The face we knew better than our own was also sparkling with tears. The heart we'd seen broken and helped mend was pouring out the love of a lifetime friendship. Whether this friendship would endure as it had in the past we couldn't know. We didn't care. We could laugh and talk at the present—that's all that mattered. We realized we had to live for today, because "yesterday is just a dream, and tomorrow is only a vision."

Juniors Make Float; Sell Basketball Concessions

Selected to lead the 480 "middle class" members were President Pat Van Winkle, Vice-President Lisa Owens, Secretary Terri Summers, and Treasurer Nancy Denny. Twenty-three students represented the juniors in the Executive and Student Councils.

Junior candidate Lynne Tweed, escorted by Doug Bradford, was the 1974 Homecoming Queen, while the 76'ers float, "Keep On Trackin," was in tune with the Homecoming theme.

Keeping with tradition, twenty-five juniors took the positions of concession workers. During nine home basketball games the juniors sold popcorn and cokes to provide the main source of revenue for the Prom.

Distracted by another student, Steve Turner momentarily derails his train of thought.

Momentarily glancing up from an assignment, Debbie Brock lets her thoughts unscramble.

"Pride" is Important To Enthused Juniors

What was the junior year? Was it the election of class officers? Could it have been the PSAT exam? Perhaps it was the nomination of a Homecoming Queen candidate? Indeed, the 1974-75 junior year was this and more. It was laughing when a tray of cokes sloshed all the way down someone's shirt. It was crying when they lost a ball game. It was working together and learning from the mistakes they made. It was fun, and sharing; it was a climb up the ladder to reach the top—to finally become a senior. Most of all, the juniors felt their year meant pride. Pride was felt as they occupied the middle section in the MH bleachers, blowing bubbles, and cheering for our team.

Junior Job Proves to be Hassle

Simply selling popcorn, cokes, and candy were not the only tasks of eager juniors who took on the job of basketball concessions. The popcorn machine had to be filled with seasoning, kernels, and salt, and then carefully watched to make sure the precious popcorn wasn't burned. Thousands of coke lids had to be snapped into place, and there was always the exhilarating task of counting out change to someone who had just paid for a Mars bar with a ten dollar bill.

Despite the small hassles, juniors found working concessions an interesting as well as educational part of their second year at MH. Warm stories and sassy anecdotes often passed between the tired students as they cleaned up after games, and somehow each evening's work brought everyone just a little closer together.

Class of '76 Achieves Greater Unity

Academic undertakings, while important to the junior class, proved to be only a portion of the many things the class of '76 strove for in 1974-75. The juniors tried to meet three of the most important human needs—a purpose for living, social mingling, and a good education—while enrolled at MH.

Though it was often difficult to achieve happy relations with other people, the "middlemen" did a remarkable job of making everyone feel at home. They learned courtesy, honesty, and respect for one another as they worked in close quarters on such projects as Homecoming floats, Prom decorating, and concessions.

Energetic Juniors Ponder Grades

"Snug as a bug in a rug"—a perfect description of the energetic juniors who occupied the middle spot in the MH student body. Along with choosing for the first time from various honors classes, the "middlemen" engaged in activities ranging from a float in the Homecoming parade to the preparation of the Prom.

Class ranks grew more and more important as the time came to choose the top two students as marshalls for graduation. Clad in white caps and gowns, these four scholars led the class of '75 to their diplomas.

Grades also were important as eight juniors were nominated as delegates to Girls' and Boys' State. These juniors learned about our government and made many new friends. While "safe in the middle," juniors began to emerge from their cocoons.

Final Year Arouses Anticipation

"I can't believe it! We've actually made it through our junior year!"

"Amen! I don't feel as though I've been through eleven years of school. Maybe I'm just getting old."

"You and me both, pal. I'm really looking forward to next year, though. Seniors at last!"

"It's about time." "I was so busy this year I almost went crazy. Electing officers, writing history reports, spending a whole Saturday morning taking the PSAT... Plus all the money I spent for fees, lunch, Prom, and my Pep Club sweater."

"I know. I've been broke all year, but it's been worth it. And just think—next year there'll be announcements, caps and gowns, the Pizza Party, and Composition."

"Ugh! Comp! Tell me—do they really 'bleed' all over our themes?"

The class of '77 was introduced to MH in late August. From then on, the sophs were always busy. The Sophomore Executive Council's activities occupied many sophs throughout the year, and sophomore members of the Student Council willingly voiced their opinions. Slowly, the building and the teachers became more familiar. The sophomore class enthusiastically supported the football, basketball, and baseball teams, as well as cross country, wrestling, and track. The class of '77 witnessed an increase in girl's sports activities. Unification was one of the major goals of the class.

First Days at MH Establish Identity

At first glance, MH might have seemed huge, cold and impersonal. There were so many off-limit places, so many don'ts. At times, the halls resembled a twisted maze filled with faceless people. Computerization became more and more a facet of daily life as one tried to explain to his counselor that he didn't sign up for calculus but for cooking. Still, for most sophomores, there was a wanting, a need to belong. It took time, but gradually the members of the class of '77 found their identity and proudly took their places as participants in the Pirate student body.

Soph Cheerleaders Generate MH Spirit

Five spirited sophomores took their places as reserve cheerleaders for the 1974-75 football and basketball seasons. Sponsored once again by Mrs. Pat Dent, the girls were chosen from a group of twelve by football season ticket holders, Pep Club, Band, and M-Club. The reserve squad included Myra Cullnane, Robin Melson, Cindy Palmer, Lesa Poer, and Tracy Sparks. The sophomores aided in generating school spirit, an essential part of the general attitude of students. The cheerleaders cheered at some reserve football games and all home basketball games, as well as riding in the Homecoming parade.

Class Rings Symbolize Pride

Choosing class rings was one of the most important things the class of '77 did this year. There were so many styles and colors, and so little time. Herff Jones offered for the first time the metal ultranium. Another new choice was the symbol of a favorite sport or special achievement which further added to the personal value of the ring.

Other opinions were sought, weighed, and finally a selection was made. There seemed to be an infinite amount of time between the placement of the orders and the moment when sophs actually received their rings. Although the rings were expensive, most students thought they were well worth the money. To some underclassmen, the ring symbolized a belonging to MH; to others, it symbolized a step closer to that magic date of graduation. No matter what outlook was taken, there was a certain pride in the wearing of a class ring.

Headed by class President Bobby Cunningham, and sponsored by Mrs. Mary Sue Harrington, the class of '77 set unification and involvement of the sophomore class as their major goals. The other class officers were Vice-President Brian Hise, Secretary Judy Neal, and Treasurer Tracy Sparks. The underclassmen entered a float and queen candidate Shelly Hall in Homecoming activities. Other projects included constructing a sectional display, cleaning up after Prom, and sponsoring a car wash which earned fifty dollars for various class projects. The executive council met the first and third Mondays of each month.

Sophs Review Successful Year

"Wow, am I glad school was finally let out. I thought this year would never end."

"Me too . . . but it's been a good year."

"I guess so. I know Christmas vacation was fantastic."

"No, no! I mean like getting our class rings. That really meant a lot to me. Remember sectional week when everybody's spirits were up?"

"Yea, that was O.K. but oh how I hated math and history. I'll be glad to leave them for the summer. And those upperclassmen who thought they were so cool and always bossed us around."

"That's true but just think, next year we'll be juniors and we can have some fun then. I bet next year will be great."

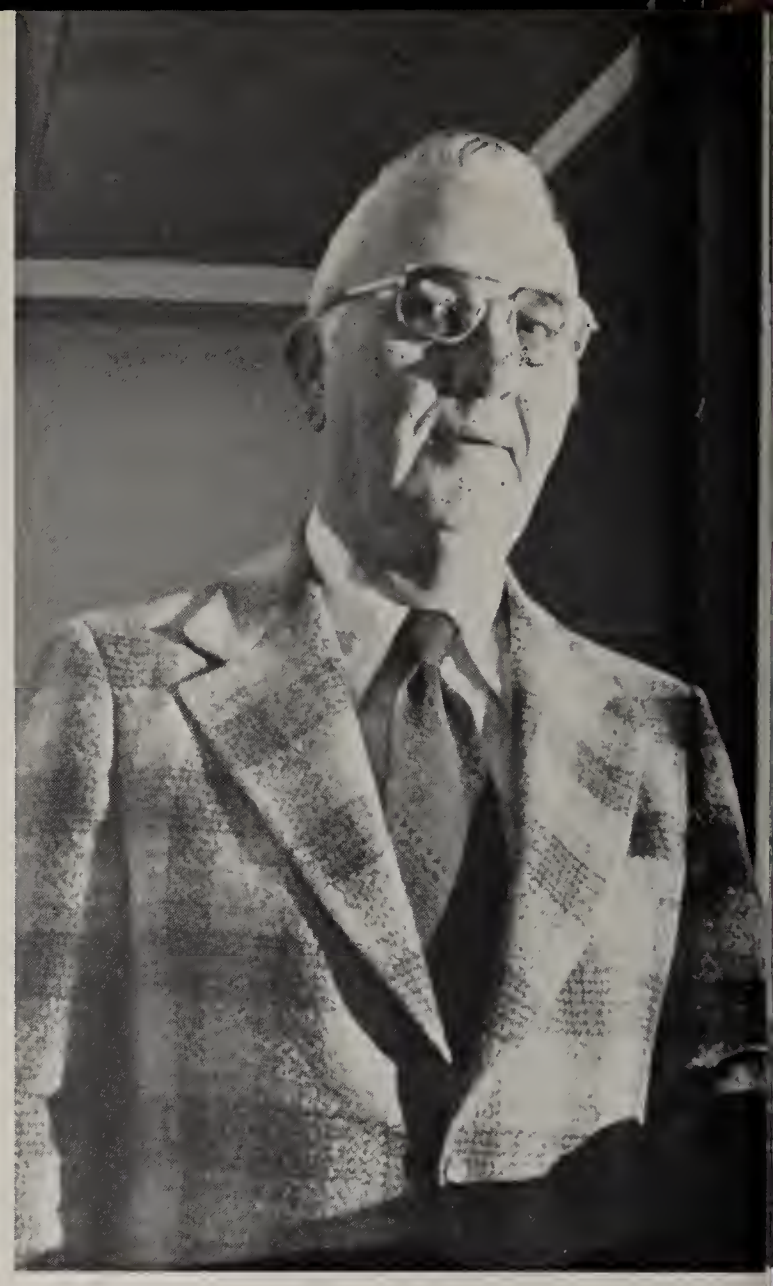
Education Concerns Each Administrator

Meeting on the first and third Tuesdays of every month the Anderson Community School Board dealt with the education and welfare of all students in the thirty-seven Anderson schools. Presiding over the seven-member 1974-75 board was Mr. Ray Turner. Mrs. Josephine Hill and Mr. Kenneth McClure were new members. MH district representative Edward Miller explained that "one of the important decisions made was about Madison Heights' Phase I building project." Major decisions were also made about the eighteen million dollar budget, school policy, and administrative appointments.



Board member Maurice Robinson visits MH to discuss future building plans with Mr. Wann.

Mr. Maurice Wann, Principal

Mr. John Dull, Vice-Principal

Over a quickly eaten lunch, Mr. Wann discusses the school day's activities with Mr. Carr.

Overseeing a school the size of Madison Heights was a time-consuming job, requiring hours of diligent labor both in and out of school for Mr. Maurice Wann, principal, and Mr. John Dull, vice-principal. The office of Mr. Wann was a busy place. Concerned parents, teachers, and students made up the bulk of the traffic which wore a path to his door. In his second year as principal, Mr. Wann made many executive decisions but still found time to chat with students and make his TV debut on Channel 7. A man of many interests, the principal stated that though he sometimes missed being a classroom teacher he found his job a rewarding one.

"A change for the better has been the advent of a six-subject, no-homeroom schedule," said Vice-Principal John Dull. The busy vice-principal took care of buses and the operation of our lunch program. Though his job included watching hall traffic and aiding Mr. Wann, Mr. Dull had the time to demonstrate his skill at hypnotism to interested MH'ers. Having taught school himself, John Dull recognized the problems of both teachers and students, and his office was always open. The Disney-World fan held an optimistic attitude about MH'ers and urged them above all to avoid setting false goals.

Dean of Boys Mr. Don Gregory and Assistant Dean Mr. Fred Lamb had varied outside interests. Two of Mr. Gregory's activities were shooting pool and playing tennis. When asked what he liked and disliked most about MH, Mr. Gregory replied he didn't like working with a student who had no ambition, but enjoyed being around "all the beautiful people."

Mr. Lamb took part in sports and went fishing in his spare time. Before becoming assistant dean, he had taught Driver's Education for thirteen years. Besides the time he gave as a disciplinary leader, he also coached the wrestling team.

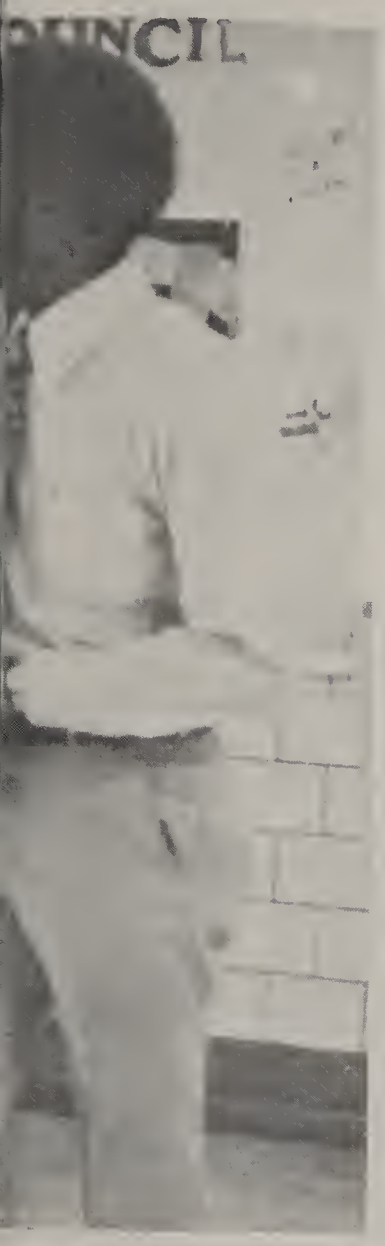
Working With Students Improves Relationships



Mrs. Patsy Worrell, Dean of Girls

Mrs. Deborah Governor, Assistant Dean of Girls

Discipline was one of the many activities of Mrs. Patsy Worrell, dean of girls, and Mrs. Deborah Governor, assistant dean of girls. Mrs. Worrell enjoyed sewing, eating dinner out, and going to all sorts of sports events. The active girls' dean felt that if students would try getting more involved and not criticizing the teachers or other students, school would be a much more pleasant place. In her eighth year at Madison Heights, Mrs. Worrell's most important concern and greatest pleasure was "working with the kids."

A few of Mrs. Governor's favorite pastimes included tennis, reading, traveling, and meeting people. "Understanding between students and teachers" was something she felt was of great importance. The assistant dean believed that if more teachers attempted to understand student problems a much better student-teacher relationship could be reached.

Taking a break from daily routines, Mr. Lamb stops to assist John Golding with his locker.

Mrs. Kathleen Morris, Attendance Clerk

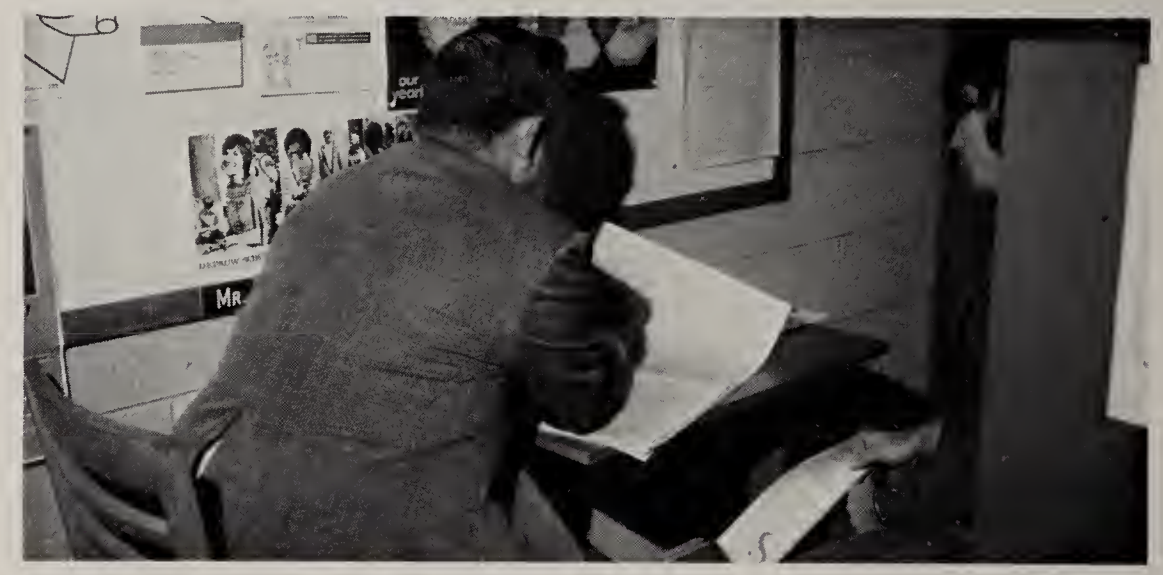
Mrs. Susan Street, Athletic Secretary

Mrs. Kathleen Herron, Registrar, Secretary to the Principal

Administrative Aids Hold Vital Roles

A five-woman secretarial staff was of vital importance to the MH administration. Pat Reasner acted as bookkeeper and switchboard operator, while Office Manager Kathleen Herron served as secretary to Mr. Wann and acted as registrar. Kathleen Morris, secretary to Mr. Dull, was in charge of student attendance. Barbara Brown, secretary to the deans, also worked in the library and assisted with attendance records. Susan Street completed the list as athletic secretary.

Besides dispensing over 10,000 aspirin, Mrs. Myrna Sauer took care of upset stomachs, bruises, and sprains. She was responsible for checking eyes, speech, and hearing.



Giving advice, Mr. Frank Robertson explains some college procedures to senior Ted Baxter.

Miss Pat Reasner, Bookkeeper

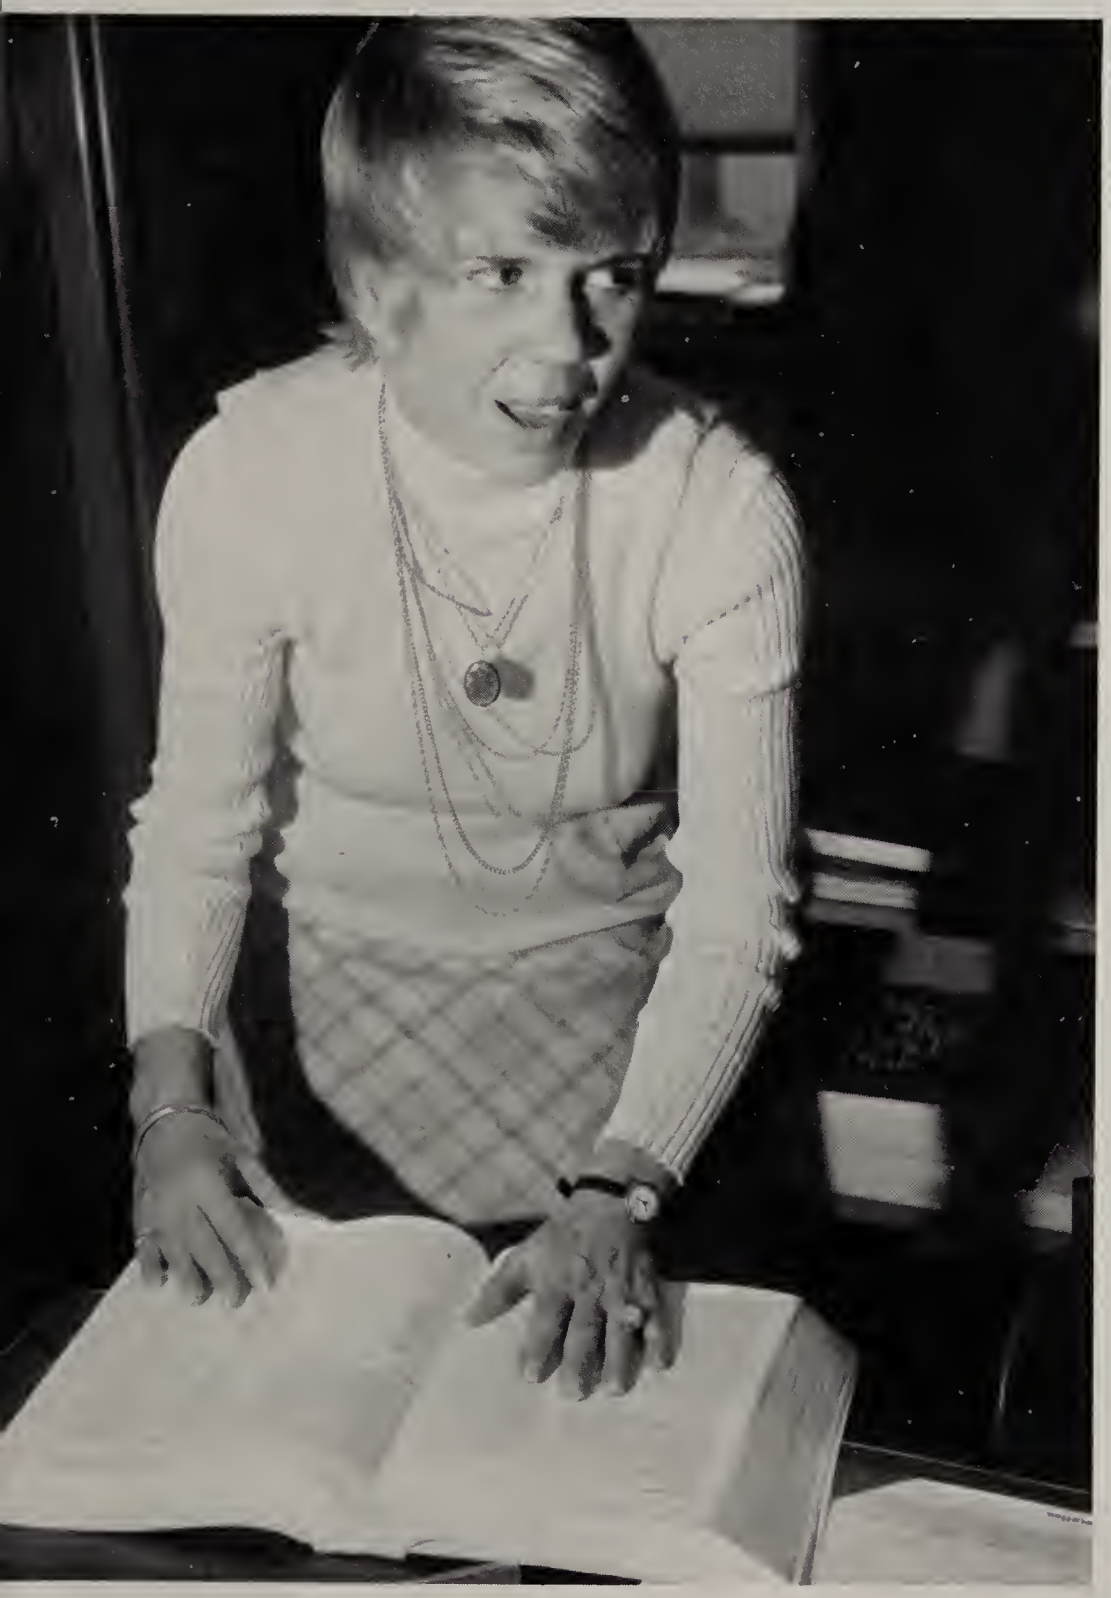
Mrs. Barbara Brown, Secretary to the Library and Deans

Mrs. Myrna Sauer, Nurse

Mr. Ron Beard, Director of Guidance and Counseling

Working as a team under the guidance of newly-appointed director Ron Beard, the counselors attempted to make everyone happy. New this year was the addition of a fourth, part-time counselor. Mr. Frank Robertson, math teacher, spent three periods each day working in the office.

"Our doors swing freely to the student with a personal problem as well as academic dissatisfactions," said Mrs. Mary Sue Harrington, in her first year as sophomore counselor. As a part of her everyday responsibilities, Mrs. Louise Grantham administered aptitude tests to the juniors. Triumphing over student frustrations gave her a feeling of satisfaction. An official of the IHSAA, Mr. Beard found his job a happy one. The senior counselor found counseling a most rewarding job.



Hassled by curious sophomores, Mrs. Mary Sue Harrington helps students with college plans.

The beautiful paradise of the four Hawaiian Islands was visited by Mrs. Louise Grantham, on the Bob Braun two-week tour, and Mrs. Linda Curren on a five-week leisurely vacation at Waikiki. Another tropical Shangri-La was seen by Mr. Mike Sokol, as his children financed an eight-day trip to the Virgin Islands for his 25th wedding anniversary. Mrs. Grantham also spent a month in Canada.

Getting back to the good old U.S., Mrs. Myrna Sauer was all over the country boating and partaking in water sports. Mrs. Mary Sue Harrington absorbed the beauty of the Old West, traveling to Park City, Utah.

Last Christmas was the scene of many different activities for the MH faculty. The age-old custom of a big Christmas dinner was practiced by Mrs. Linda Curren, Mr. Maurice Wann, and Mr. Fred Lamb. Christmas Eve found Mr. Stan Ray participating in a Midnight Service at the East Lynn Christian Church. Mrs. Betty Babcoke took part in an Advent Service and an annual Mother-Daughter Breakfast. Mr. Doug Vermillion found Christmas rather hectic as he traveled to six different places. Mr. John Dull won the prize for traveling, however, as he journeyed to Hawaii to visit his children.

Teachers Seek Jobs

Every summer, stores are swamped with students looking for jobs. Some MH teachers were out job-hunting also. Not eager for change, some faculty remained at MH to teach summer school. Among these were Mr. Ron Beard, Mr. Mike Sokol, and Mr. Larry Good. Venturing into the world of unknown skills, Mr. Wally McCutcheon was hired at the Edgewood Sunoco Station, and became part-time manager. Mr. Ed Roettinger ran the Putt-Putt golf course. Mrs. Mildred Felmlee took time off from her summer school job to undergo the task of roofing her home by herself.

Children, Fishing Take Free Time

Few people know of the warehouse of knowledge among our faculty. Mrs. Linda Curren spends her spare time doing crewel embroidery. Mr. Tom Wegner's passion is collecting and refinishing antiques. Mr. Maurice Wann enjoys fishing and outdoor work, but admits that his best-loved pasttime is spending time with his ten-year old daughter. Choir director Mr. Stan Ray spends most of his free time with music. Also liking music, Mr. Doug Vermillion is an accomplished trumpet player. Commenting on her hobbies, Mrs. Betty Babcoke "loves" reading and is "totally addicted" to bookstores.

Inflation Hits Cafeteria Prices

Cafeteria Manager Mrs. Lois Bandy, who has served on the MH staff for five years, stated that this year's price hikes were due to "just plain inflation." She also believed that the students had an overall good attitude toward the increases. Our diligent staff of twenty-two "food service assistants" put in a busy day, coming in at 7:15 and leaving at 2:40. Besides preparations for the day's meal, they also made some items for future lunches, such as sliced turkey, sauces, and chopped lettuce.

Our self-supporting cafeteria sold an average of 850 plate lunches a day, but the number varied with chicken and noodles attracting 1000 Pirates and hamburger deluxe running a close second. Very little food was wasted, proving that Pirates had husky appetites.

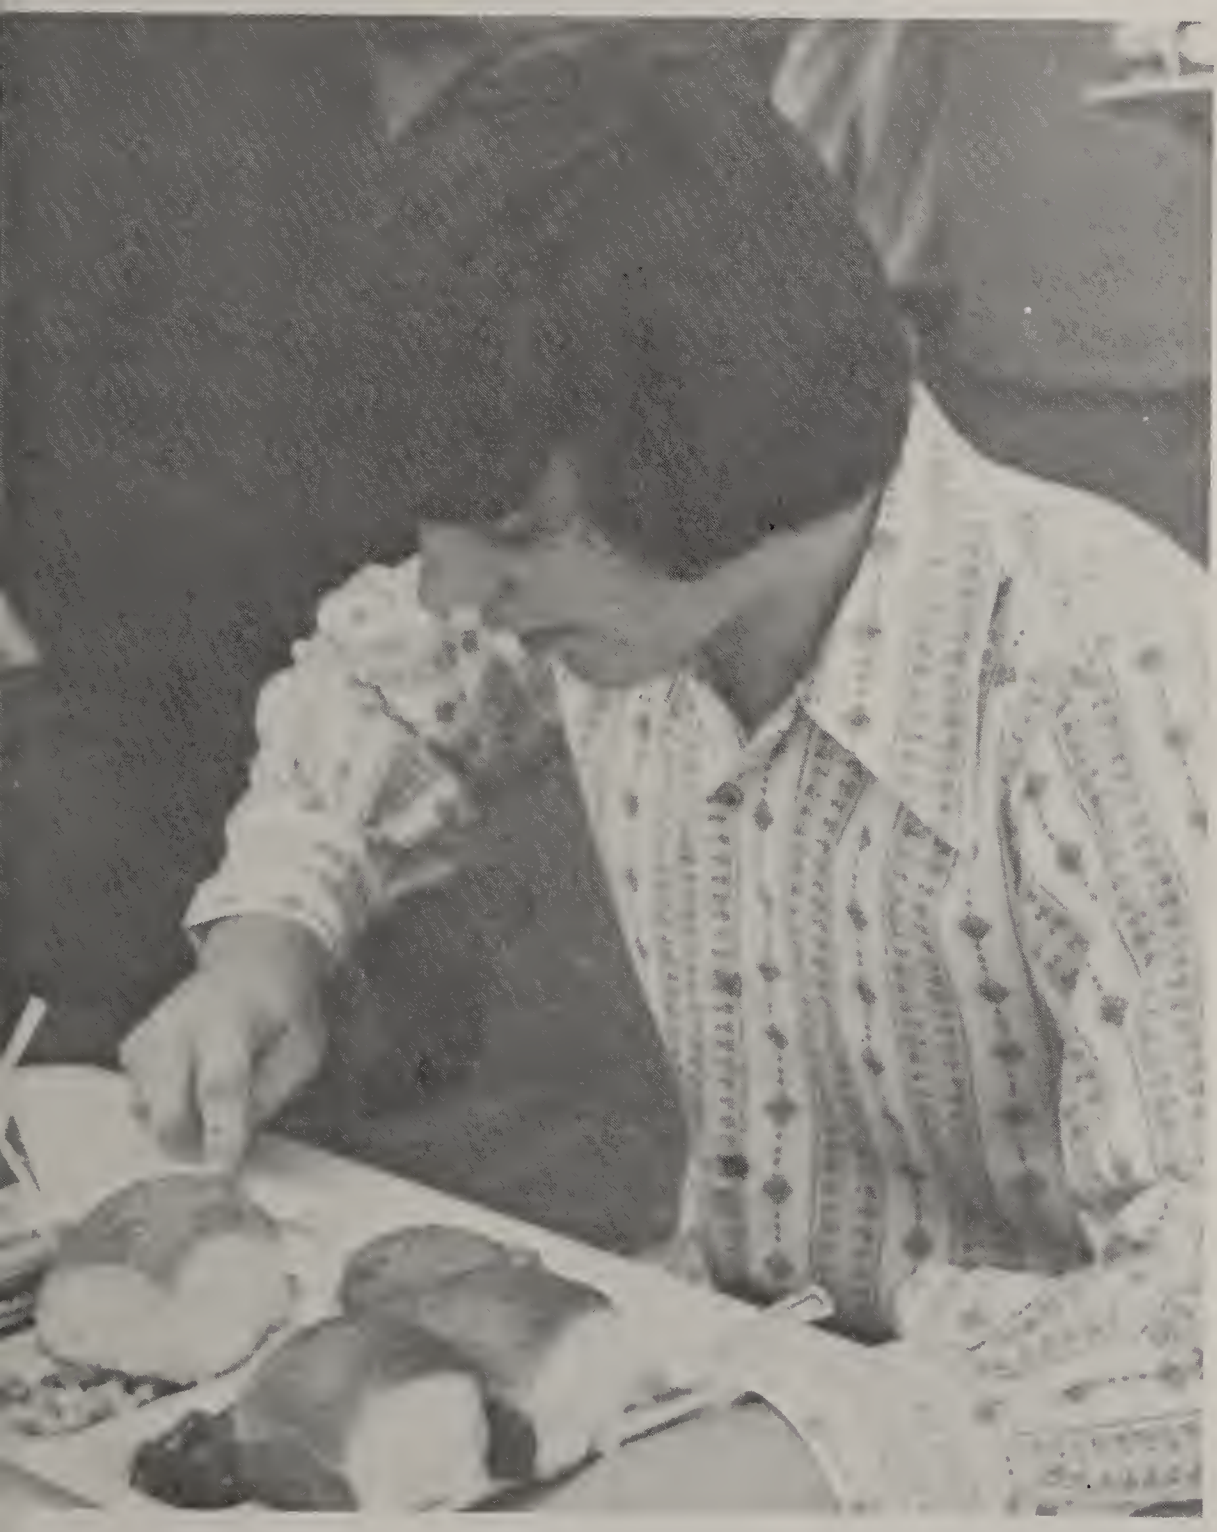
Cafeteria worker Mary Phillips stretches to read the exact weight of cookie ingredients.

Totaling up the price of a student's lunch, cashier Barbara McDowell hopes for pennies.

Skillfully kneading the batter for hot rolls, Edna Niccum displays her cooking talents.



Obviously hungry, Senior Class President Vance Gulickson digs into his four-roll lunch.

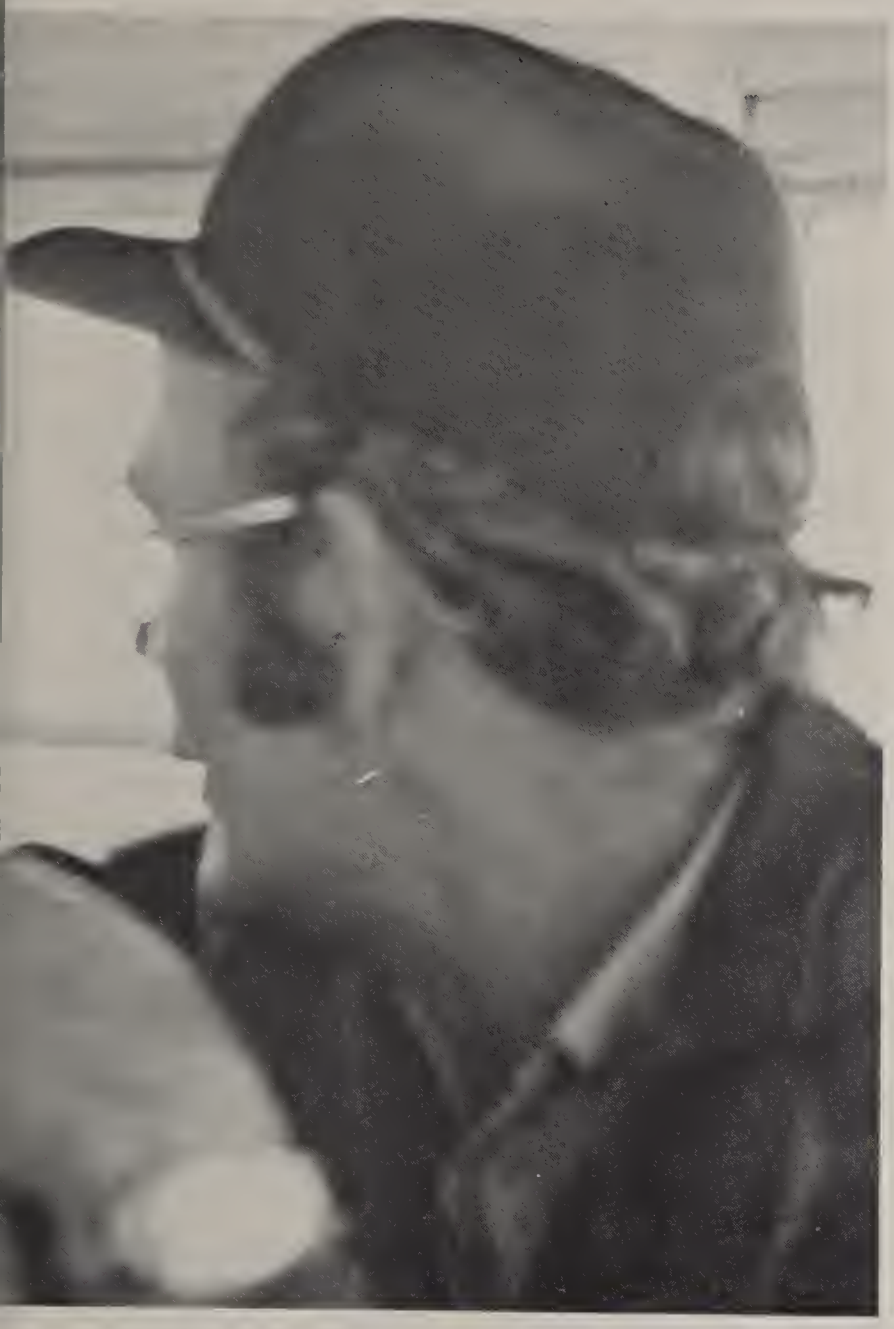
Bus Squad Cut To Low of 25

Arriving between 7:45 and 7:50, Madison Heights bus riders were more crowded as the bus squad was decreased from last year's thirty-five to this year's low of twenty-five. Rerouting resulted from the cut-down.

Heading the drivers who had the important job of providing free transportation to half the student body was Bob Good. On his bus and others, rules were put down for both drivers and riders. Drivers were required to have a chauffeur's license. Keeping buses in tip-top shape was a must, and there were rigid inspections of headlights, blinking lights, brakes, and first-aid equipment.

Keeping the school a clean and neat place to live, Estel Thomas busily sweeps the stairs.

Custodians Active at all Times



Waiting for school dismissal, bus drivers Sonny Price and Don Harmeson pause for a chat.

Heading a staff of nine custodians, Arthur McVey said that summer was the busiest time of all. Rewaxing halls, and cleaning desks, walls, lights, and rooms prepared MH for fall. During school, the day shift cleaned the halls twice daily, kept the drinking fountains clean, swept the stairs, and cleaned the cafeteria. The night shift cleaned classrooms, swept halls, and cleaned bleachers.

Two special people in maintenance were the matron and the grounds man. The matron cleaned the women's restrooms, home ec lounge, and the offices. The grounds man kept the football field clean, cleared the snow off the parking lots, and cut the grass so we could play frisbee at noon.

CUSTODIANS—Arthur McVey, Shirley Pope, Estel Thomas

Cleaning the water fountain is one of janitor Arthur McVey's many time-consuming jobs.

Senior Cathy Hughes puts a little soul into a detailed explanation of Black History.

Putting this yearbook together was a satisfying experience for us all. For juniors, it was a new and exciting adventure. They gobbled the first proofs, as wiser seniors stood by and gently pointed out our mistakes. Perhaps the one thing we all learned was how to get along in cramped quarters. We learned to smile on days when we felt like crying, and to laugh at ourselves when things went wrong.

A special thanks to Mrs. Ann Smith, our sponsor, advisor, and friend. Our thanks also to Mike Mellenthin, Dave Rutter, Doug McKinley and Ron Dageforde for pictures. We thank Mr. and Mrs. Jack Woods, and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Beehler who opened their homes to us; the photographer's parents who let them stay up all night developing film; and Doyle Fox and Judy Lane for their assistance. Special thanks go to Ron May, Dodd's House of Flowers, and Standt's Jewelry for their help in crowning our TC Queen. Thanks also to Motor Quality for use of an Olds for Homecoming. We are also indebted to Ron Scott, who designed the cover. Last but not least, we thank our teachers, who helped us in many ways—especially Mr. Bradford, who has given his time and assistance to help set up team pictures.

TC'ers Pat Boone and Paul Moran search for more unsuspecting photographic subjects.

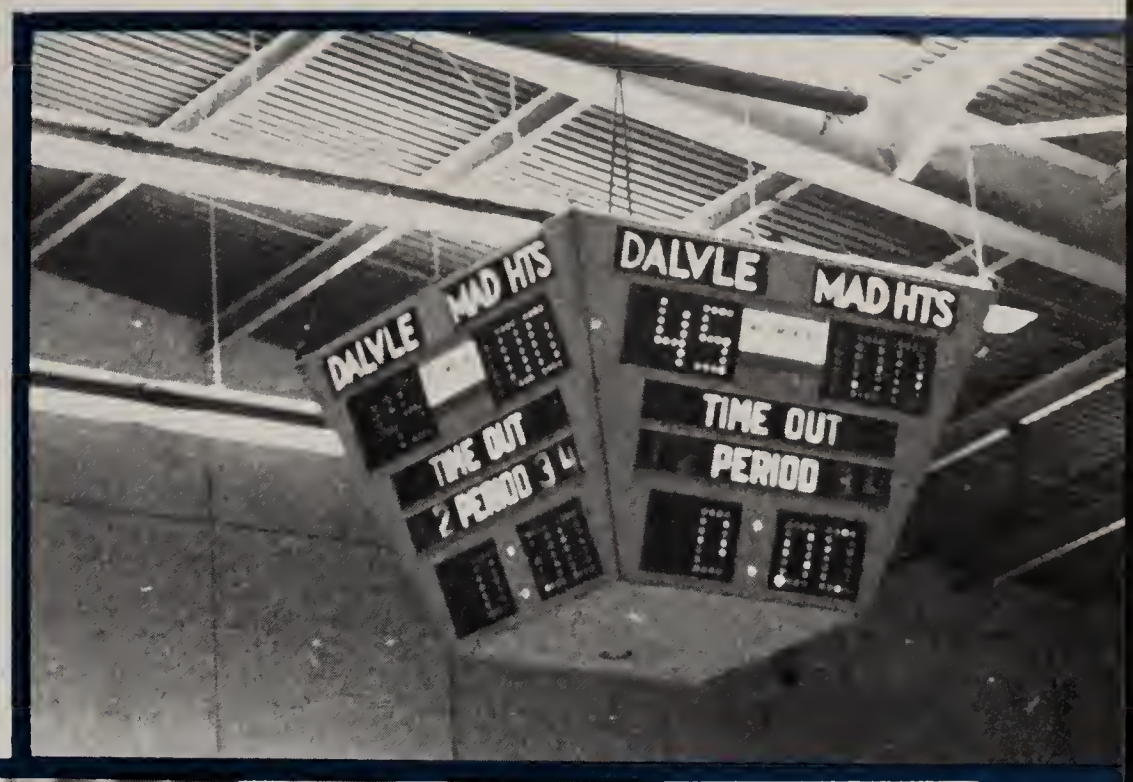
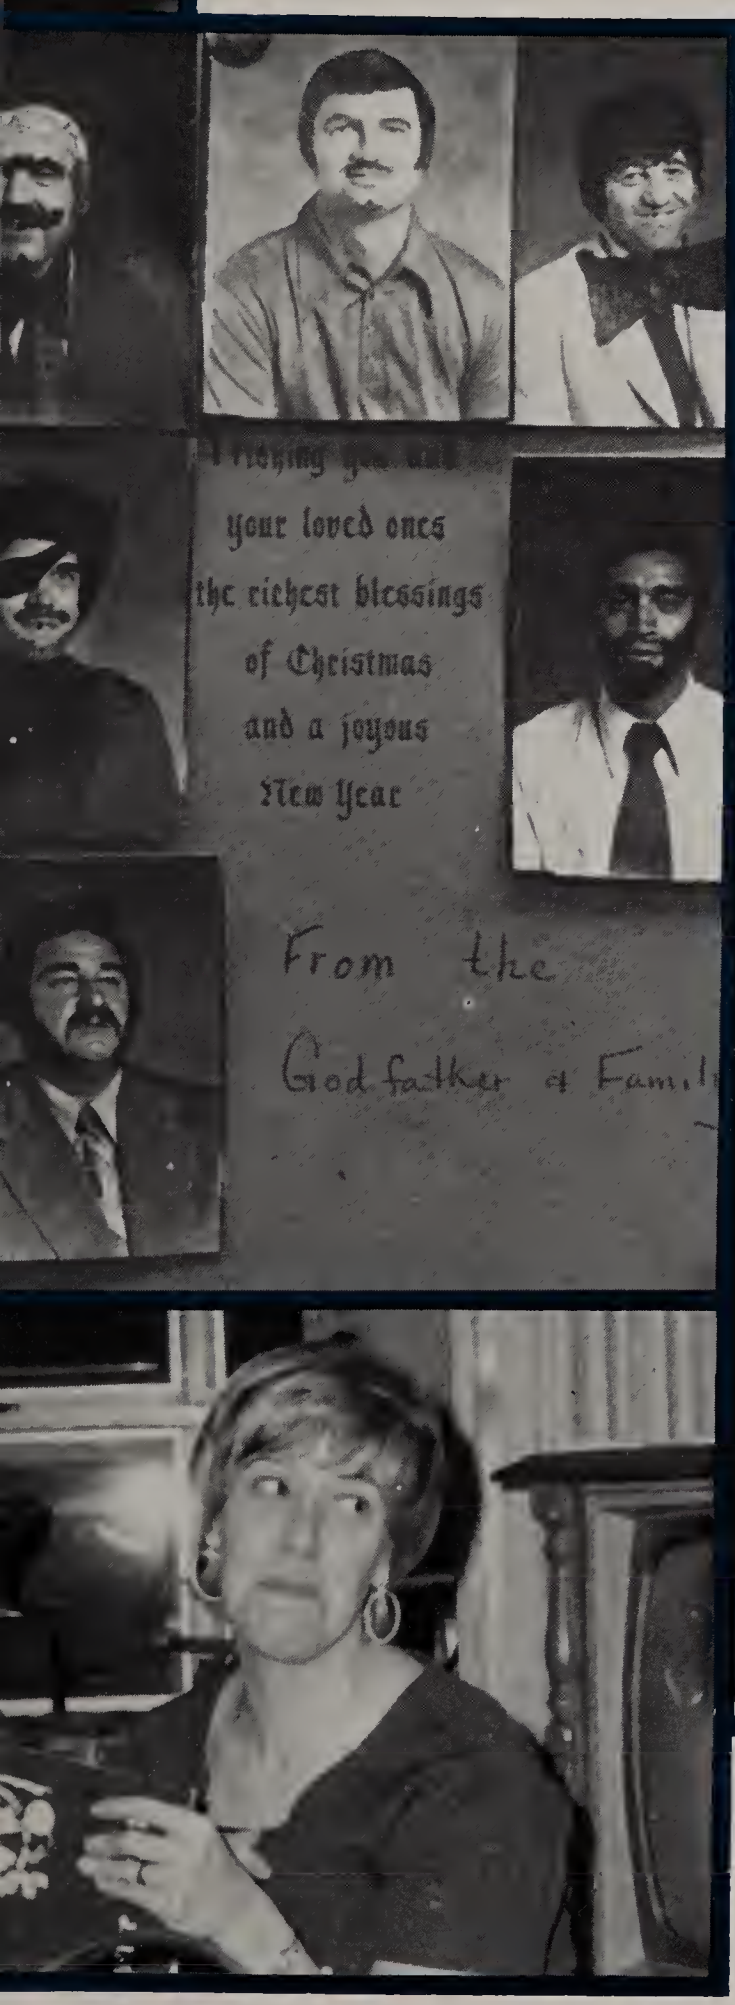
The year went quickly, and before we realized it we were walking back out the doors to summer jobs and sun-bathing. We'd made it through term papers and final exams, Prom and Commencement. For some, high school days were over. For others, they had just begun. We had laughed together and cried together, seen victories and defeats. We'd run to class late, kicked stubborn lockers, and sat through lectures together. We'd begun to learn a lot that wasn't found in any textbooks —of life and coping with it. We were on the Threshold of Learning . . .

An anonymous teacher puts finishing touches on his co-workers in a Christmas greeting.

Cathy Hughes' angelic face discloses bright devils' food eyes as Cathy poses for a pic.

The score of the MH-Daleville bout proves that Pirates really can "buc" the Broncos.





Roundballers Mark Porter, David Morgan, Joe Buck, and Jay Terry clown before a game.

On the verge of tears, TC Sponsor Mrs. Smith is overjoyed with the 1974 Treasure Chest.

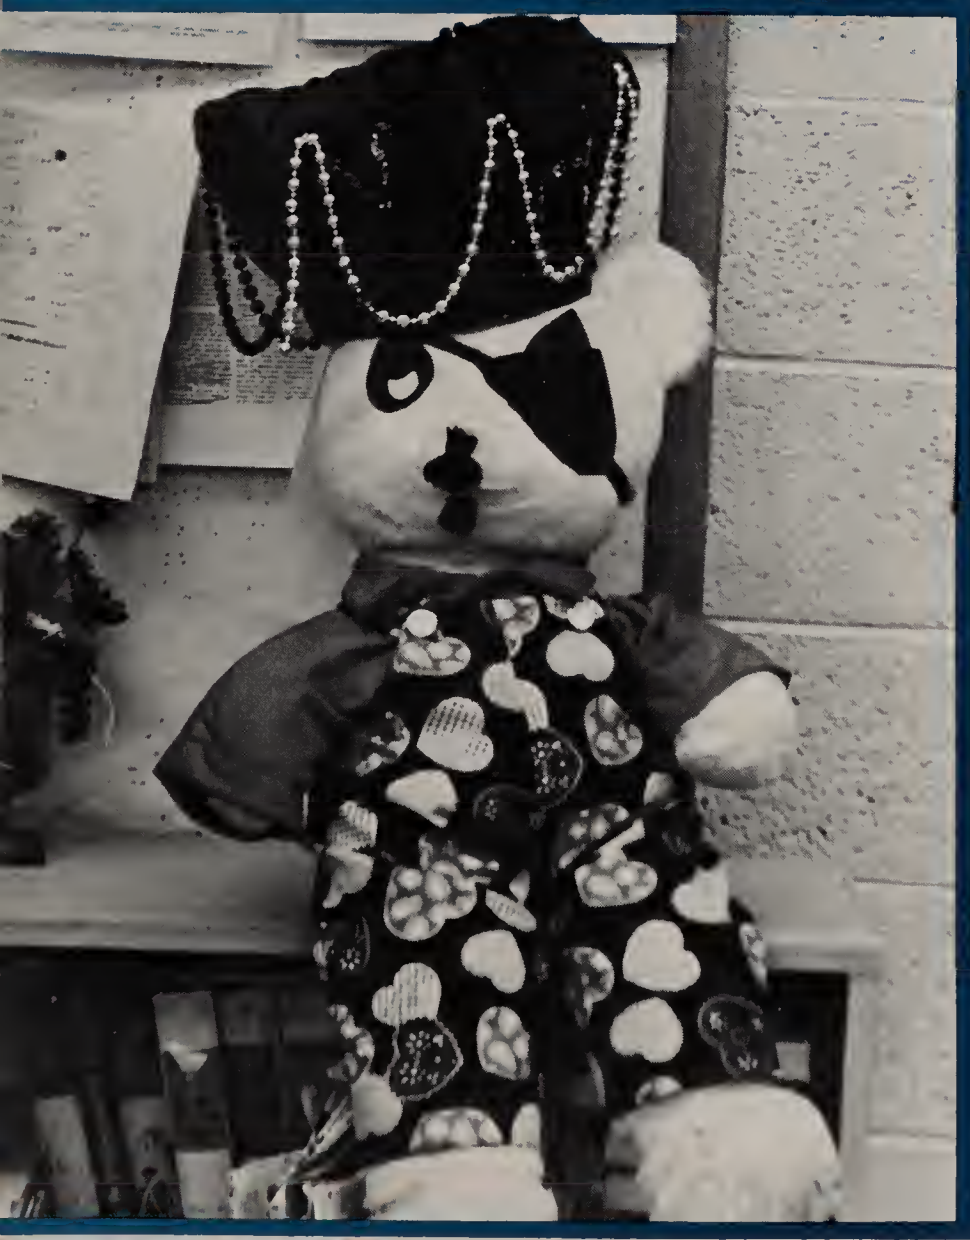
The tired feet of Dan Brown and Nancy Beehler receive a needed rest at the Senior Dance.

We said goodbye reluctantly to Coach Bruin, who, after fourteen years left MH for Portland High School. We remembered him leading the football team to many a victory. Mr. G. E. Ebbertt retired from his position as Superintendent of Public Schools after leading the way for twenty years. Girls golf and track teams represented MH with fine first seasons and $3.50 all-sports cards encouraged interest in minor sports. Our auditorium was started and we saw the beginnings of a swimming pool and tennis courts. We were on the Threshold of Changing. . .

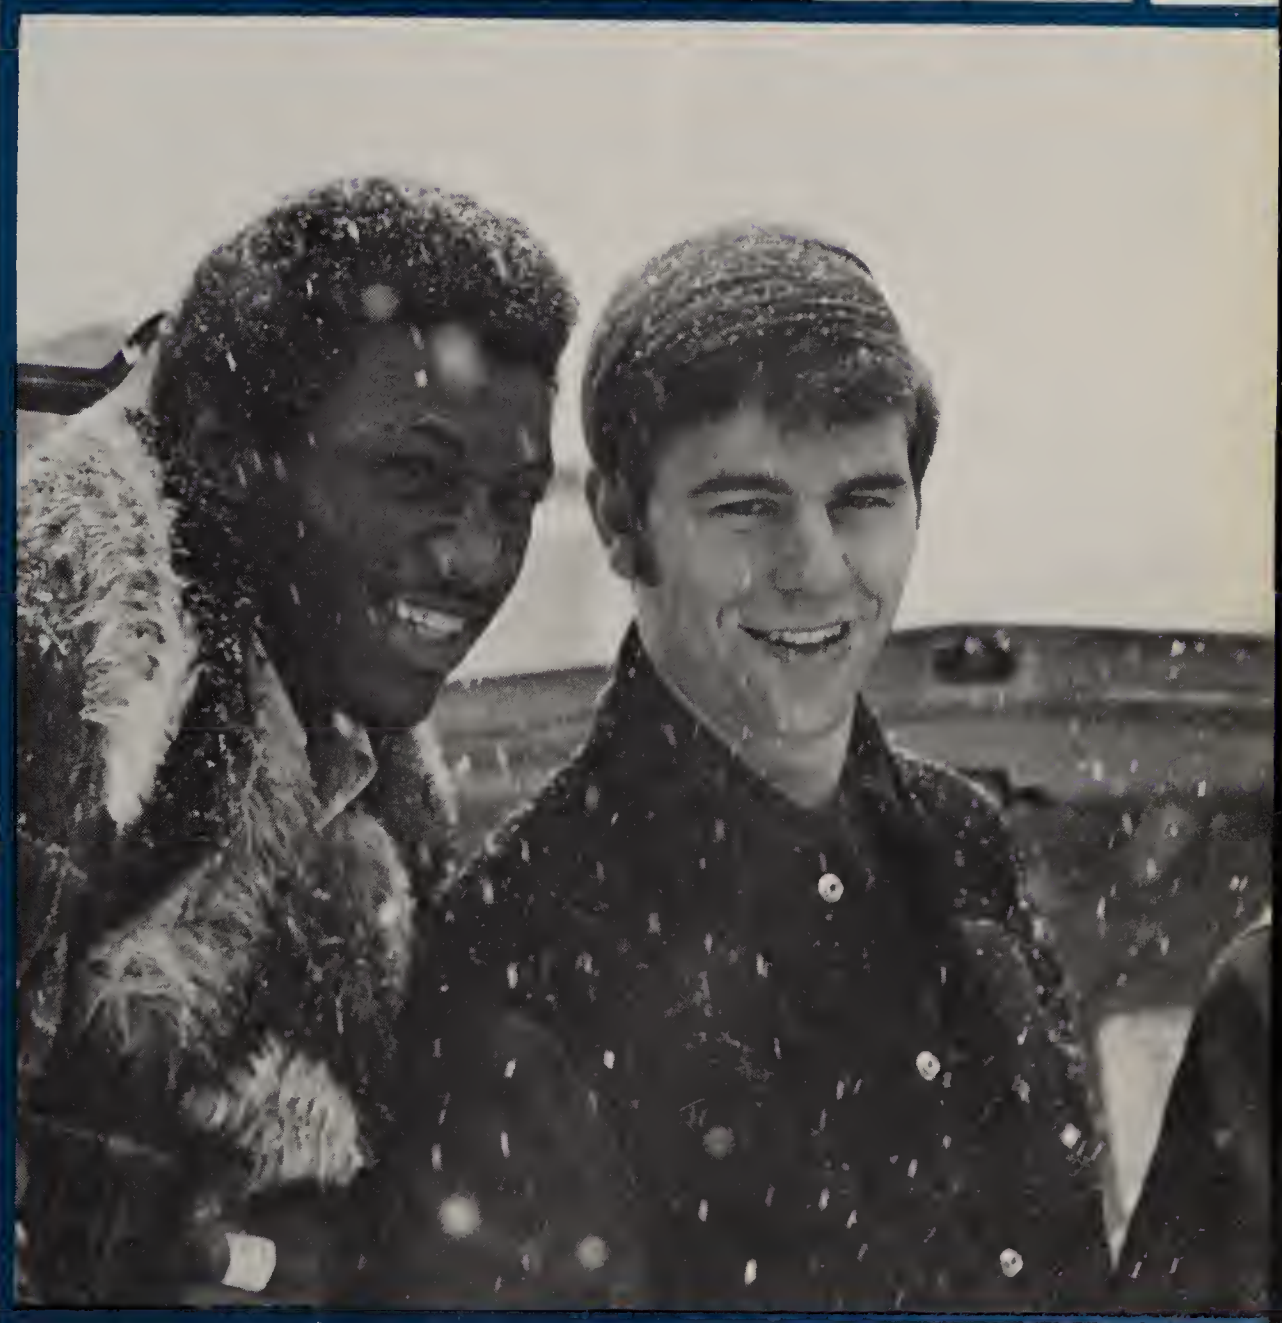
Adorned in sparkled glasses, Pep Club member Tresa Rudolf shines through for her team.

School board members, architects, and Mr. Wann break ground for the new MH auditorium.

Band members bolster spirit by performing a rousing rendition of "Rock Around the Clock."



Weary Pat Boone takes a swallow of orange juice in order to restore her sapped energy.



Seniors David Morgan and Joe Buck enjoy the snow that flurried on Semi-State weekend.

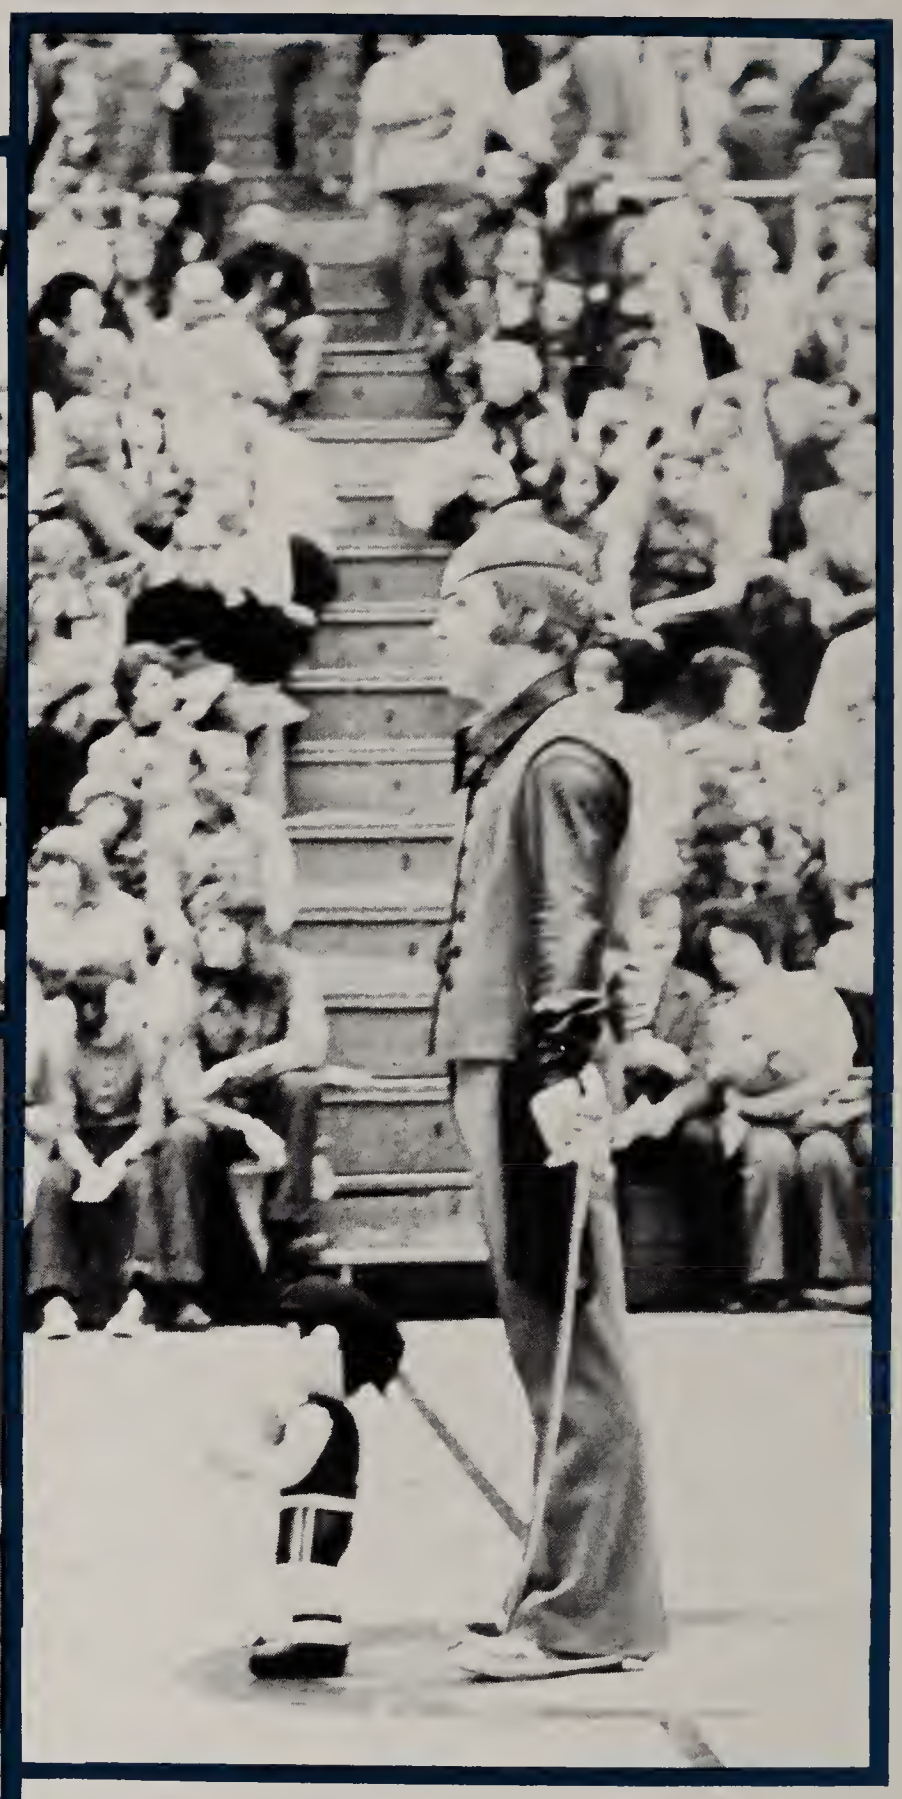
Mascots do double duty at the Muncie North game as Paul Moran and "Buckle" stand guard.



And now, as we say our good-byes to friends who drift away for the summer, we can look back over the year. We made the news as we toppled number one ranked Muncie North in regular season play. We supported our band as they traveled to a Cincinnati Reds' baseball game to compete in a contest against other honored bands. The BOP's were one of six bands selected from Kentucky and Indiana. We hosted a state speech meet and produced "Once Upon A Mattress." We learned, we grew, we changed. We were on the Threshold of Living . . .
